High rollers in the summer of 1913

We received this photograph courtesy of Charles Howard who is researching the life of one Brampton George Dashwood Stopford who was a student at the S.E. Agricultural College 1910–1913. He arrived at Wye with this Rolls Royce Silver Ghost. The Rolls was apparently lacking rear seats although there is no shortage of sitting space in the picture above! It was used for many things around the campus and must have been at the centre of many a prank.

What is fascinating is that after Wye, B.G.D. Stopford entered WW1 as a volunteer driver of his Rolls-Royce to assist the General Staff. He is recorded as having taken part in the retreat at Mons – one of the most significant and heroic episodes of that war. Mr Howard, having since acquired the car, is working on a history of it and the man and it is hoped that we will be able to report more about this amazing link to Wye in a future edition.

Wye College Agricola Club Annual Dinner

Saturday, September 27th 2014

6.45pm for 7.30pm

Wye College, Wye, Kent, TN25 5AH

We hope to welcome a good turnout of Agricolae to keep the flag flying for Wye. This year in particular we thought it would be great to see people who started or graduated in 1954, 1964, 1974, 1984, 1994 & 2004.

So please encourage your contemporaries to come and get a table together.

If you started at Wye in any of these years,
you might like to celebrate the anniversary of your arrival.

(Dress: Black Tie or Lounge Suits)

Menu

Tomato & Mozzarella topped Bruschetta with Rocket Salad

*Balsamic Braised Lamb with Creamy Mash and Caramelised Vegetables
OR Aubergine Lasagne*

Pear & Almond Tart with Cream

Coffee

There will also be some wine on the tables with more available to purchase, plus beer.

Please note that the dinner will be held in the Kempe Centre which is the "new" building that once housed the library and study rooms, across from the old squash and tennis courts.

We do not anticipate that we can gain access to the main buildings this year but we are reasonably optimistic that we will on future occasions.

The Jacobean statues come home

For the latest on their provenance, see page 38.

Editor/Chairman's Report

John Walters – Agricola Club Chairman and Journal Editor

It has been a very good year, at least, from my perspective sitting here in Wye...the town that has been voted as the UK's third most desirable place in which to live (Sunday Times). I say a very good year because a few things have happened over the past twelve months that have affected us – the Agricola Club – either directly or indirectly in a pretty positive way.

First amongst equals is the success in securing the Kempe Centre for our dinner this year. It's not the Ritz, or more importantly perhaps, it's not the old dining hall; but it's back in Wye and, with a following wind (and assuming that we all behave ourselves this year), in future years we may get the OK to dine inside the college. That could happen once the Wye Free school has moved into the Edwardian buildings in the main college site (there are quite a few renovations/repairs required before the dining hall would be usable again; but certainly, it should be an option in the not too distant future).

Whilst on the subject of eating, another success this year was the summer hog roast, a departure from our normal autumn dinner/ reunion routine. There was a terrific turn out at Charles Course's farm in Suffolk on a blisteringly hot day in July where we were treated to the unique experience of eating lunch in a disused silage clamp! More on this on pages 20 & 21 along with information on Charles' pride and joy – a bio-digester. Suffice to say here, thanks to the generosity of our host and the efforts of Jane Reynolds in co-ordinating the whole thing (plus a large slice of lovely weather), it provided convincing proof that regional events in accessible locations can be very attractive. We will certainly run one again in another part of the country.

Although our member numbers are hardly blooming, we do still pick up a few new ones every year, as well as renewals. We estimate that we have in excess of 3,700 active members across the 74 countries that we mail journals to. Some two thirds of those members are located in the UK, about 90 in continental Europe and the remainder all over the place! It's a pity that some 400 members are still on the 'missing' list and we encourage you all to check their names at the back of the journal in case you can shed some light on their whereabouts now.

Back on the success trail: we are always seeking new/additional members to help run the Club and therefore it's a real pleasure to be able to report that at this year's AGM two members came forward to join the Committee – Chris Waters (1983–86) and David Simmons (1976–79). Although neither are spring chickens, they do help bring the average age down a little! And with my Editor's hat on, I am delighted that Gill Bond (1964–67) accepted the role of production editor for the Journal, at least for this year! It makes the task so much smoother to have another pair of hands on the tiller/keyboard.

With reference to this year's Journal itself, we have been rather successful in garnering a pretty eclectic mix of material ranging from a '60's student expedition to Sierra Leone or the investigations carried on the Jacobean staircase leading to A block to a welcome return of Dickon Turner (1982–85) and his amusing accounts of the Rustics Cricket tour. Plus, there are plenty of other pieces to interest and inform. If however, you are not happy with aspects of the content; if it sometimes seems too 60s-centric (because I and a many of the Committee were around at that time), then please let us know, or preferably, send me some material. Everyone has a tale to tell, a memory to record or a picture to paint. Don't hesitate; send it in!

Secretary's Report

Francis Huntington - Honorary Club Secretary

It was excellent to meet so many of you at the Summer Event which took the form of a Hog Roast – thank you for your support of this non-AGM/Dinner event, and many thanks to Charles Course for hosting the event. We would like to continue with the experiment and so we are seeking a venue for Summer 2015, preferably not East Anglia or the South East ; that leaves lots of other parts of the country. If you would like to host a hog roast or similar we would love to hear from you.

I mentioned last year that our Website and our Facebook pages have become more important sources of information. I would very much like to recruit a member who would be prepared to manage these two activities and take responsibility for regular website updates and Facebook posts. I do hope that there is one of you out there, who would enjoy contributing to this activity.

Your Committee

We are delighted to announce that Chris Waters (1983–1986) was elected to the Committee and we have co-opted David Simmons (1976–1979) to join us for the rest of the year with the expectation that he will become a fully elected member from September. We still have a couple of vacancies on the Committee which now meets twice a year, once in June and on a second occasion to coincide with the AGM. If additional meetings are needed then we will link up via a conference call.

Every organisation needs to be concerned about succession planning; in order to remain active we need a steady flow of members prepared to serve on the Committee. Do be in touch with me if you would like to join and ensure that the Club continues to function efficiently and with effective representation.

Club support for local ventures

The Club has financially supported two events run by Wye Heritage – the 'Wye Hops' and 'Louis Wain' exhibitions. This year the Club has again agreed to support the Wye Heritage Autumn Exhibition, which will highlight the role played by the South Eastern Agricultural College's staff and past students in WW I.

The Trustees of the Memorial Fund are continuing to respond to requests for help and support where those request meet the Fund's objectives. The Memorial Fund accounts and details of grants are published elsewhere in this Journal.

2013 Summer Event

The Hog Roast at Symonds Farm Power on Saturday 6th July 2013 was very well attended on one of the hottest days of the summer. The event is covered on page 20 in this issue. We are now looking for a venue for a similar event in 2015.

2013 AGM

The 61st Annual General Meeting was held on Friday 3rd January 2014 at Wye College, Wye. Whilst only a few members were able to make their way to Kent on a cold winter evening, we conducted the statutory business of the Club; you can read the minutes of that meeting on page 32.

Club Regulations (2002)

Revised Regulation were adopted in 2002 following the Wye College/Imperial College merger; however, there are now some anomalies. Your Committee is therefore proposing a number of minor alterations. The draft revised Club Regulations are published with the 2014 AGM Agenda on page 35. We will vote on the proposed changes at the AGM on 27th September 2014.

The Membership Database

I do apologise for the error which crept into the 2013 Journal listings – many of you were in touch to let me know that we had omitted your first name (putting your second name in instead!). We sent the correct information to the printers; however, this was incorrectly processed. You are right, we should have picked that up at the proof reading stage!

We have done our best to keep the database as accurate as possible. We do need you to check your entry and to let us know if we have got it wrong or when you change your email or postal address. Our thanks to our database administrator, Vinny Mclean, who lives in Wye and can be contacted by email should you discover an error in your record at: database @wyeagricolaclub.org.uk .

Please be aware that unless we are asked not to publish your details in the Journal, including your email address, your information will automatically appear.

New Members

We know that there are a substantial number of Wye College and Imperial College at Wye graduates, postgraduates and staff who for one reason or another have not joined the Club. We will continue to make every effort to recruit those who 'slipped through the net'. If you have friends, colleagues or contemporaries who are not members of the Club, do please encourage them to be in touch. If you email us we can send you or them the application form and bank mandate electronically or, of course, a hard copy by mail.

Web site

After five years we have had to change our web host; we hope that the new hosting company will provide us with a better service and that it will become easier for us to alter and update information.

If you have not looked before, do check out www.wyeagricolaclub.org.uk. The initial content is modest, but we will increase the variety and interest in the years ahead. We are very dependent on members to help with content – please be in touch if you have comments or contributions.

As you will have realised, we are developing electronic communications via the web site; in order to be able to develop this further we do need to have your email address. Please forward this to us if you have not already done so: database@wyeagricolaclub.org.uk

E-newsletter

I hope you are enjoying the quarterly e-newsletters. Again we do need to have your email address if you would like to receive this.

Annual membership fees

On a number of occasions in the past, your Treasurer, Secretary and our Database Administrator have tried to ensure that all annual members pay the correct membership fee which currently stands at £10 per annum. Most members promptly updated their bank mandates. Unfortunately, as at 1st October, 2011 we had a small number of members who still had not responded to our entreaties. Your committee has regretfully agreed that those in arrears will no longer receive the Journal. If you have contemporaries who are telling you that they no longer receive the Journal, the chances are that either we do not have their current address or, for annual members, we are not receiving the correct subscription – please encourage them to get up to date!

'Lost' Members

Please check the 'Lost' list at the back of the Journal. If you know of the whereabouts of a contemporary it would be great if you could be in touch with that person or be in touch with us directly. If you notice that we have missed the death of a member it would be a great assistance if you could let us know of that death, so that our database is kept up to date and an obituary penned, if appropriate. A number of members have been extremely helpful in spotting lost members and putting us in touch, thank you.

The future of the College Campus

For those who wish to be kept informed about the future of the Campus, I have again prepared an update which you will find printed opposite.

Club merchandise and publications

I continue to hold all the stocks of Club merchandise and will be pleased to supply these by return.

Current prices, inclusive of postage and packing, are as follows:

Ties	£18.00
Bow ties	£22.50
Prints of the front of College (unframed)	£10.00

The Record – Factors leading to, and consequences of, the merger of Wye College with Imperial College £5.00

The College at Wye – A Historical Guide £8.00

Please make cheques payable to 'Wye College Agricola Club'. As usual I will also make sure that these items are on sale at Club events, and via the website.

Contact

Just in case you have not caught up with your Secretary's details from elsewhere in the Journal, you should now contact me at:

The Future of the Wye Campus

Francis Huntington - Honorary Secretary of the Wye College Agricola Club and Wye Village resident

It seems incredible to me that progress has been so slow in securing a viable future for the College Campus since Imperial decided to close the College some seven years ago. All of us who live and/or work in Wye or have strong allegiances to the College Campus are still waiting. We now know, if we hadn't already guessed, that the prize for Imperial is to secure planning permission for between 200 and 300 houses. Needless to say, this has not gone down well with Wye's residents, many of whom are implacably opposed to large-scale housing development. The village is expected to be expanded with an addition of some 80 new dwellings in the near future, as a result of the designations of sites in the previous local plan, even before the Imperial proposals. This could mean an eventual expansion of over 30% in the size of the village and many believe that the infrastructure of the village just won't be adequate for this level of growth.

A year ago I reported that the Imperial Master Plan was about to be made public and that the following statement had been issued by Imperial,

"Imperial College has pulled together the various disciplines from the team including transport, landscape and design to create a cohesive and long-term plan for the former campus, which – over the next ten years or so – can help to deliver a range of community facilities, employment opportunities and new homes, ranging from starter and affordable to traditional family homes"

Since then the Master Plan has been evolving and extensive consultation has taken place. The draft plan is now being discussed with Ashford Borough Council and the Parish Council, and it is anticipated that Imperial will formally lodge their Master Plan with Ashford Borough Council in the near future. The anticipated community facilities and employment opportunities still seem some way off but the proposed formation of a Village Trust to hold some of the buildings for community use does seem to be gathering traction, although the financial viability of that concept has yet to be tested.

In addition it seems irrational that there are many buildings owned by Imperial College that are outside the scope of the current master planning exercise and which remain empty and are deteriorating. Hopefully these will soon be appraised and a long-term plan developed for them.

If you want to catch up with the process you should visit www.futureofwye3.co.uk

Running in parallel with the Master Planning Exercise there have been two other initiatives.

Parish Council Neighbourhood Plan

The Parish Council's Neighbourhood Plan for the whole parish is now well advanced and will reflect the wishes of the community at large and set out aspirations for Wye through to 2030. A great deal of work is being put into the preparation of this plan, which has drawn upon professional advice as well as public consultation. The plan will be examined to establish its viability, sustainability and its compatibility with the frameworks set out in the local, regional and national plans. In addition it will be the subject of a parish-wide referendum before it can be adopted. Presuming that there is local agreement to the Neighbourhood Plan, this complex process will probably complete during 2015.

The significance of this exercise is that, with the relaxation of some planning controls by the current Government, it is incumbent upon local communities to clearly state what they feel are the parameters within which local policy should be framed as it relates to infrastructure, commerce, community facilities, landscape and, most importantly, development.

I believe that this exercise will test how realistic the 'localism' agenda really is when there are resourceful and powerful local landowners and developers who will want to derive the maximum achievable financial benefits from their land holding. All 'stakeholders' will be promoting their own interests – whether compromise can be achieved only time will tell.

You will find some background information on the Parish Council website www.wyewithinhillpc.kentparishes.gov.uk.

Wye Free School

The one piece of positive news has been the opening in September 2013 of a new Secondary School, to be known as 'Wye School', with the first intake of 90 students into year 7. This initiative is a part of the current Government's programme of 'Free Schools' operated outside the local Education Authority. The School has a three-year lease on the Kempe Centre and currently Wye School, under the umbrella of the 'United Learning Trust', is negotiating with the Department for Education's Funding Agency and the Imperial College Endowment Board to secure a long-term lease on the Edwardian Buildings within the Main College and the laboratory area behind. This will provide them with the space they require for a school of 600 students.

You will find further information on the Wye School website www.wyeschool.org.uk

I will certainly use our e-newsletters to update members of the Agricola Club when there is anything further of significant to report on any of the above.

Possibly the most complete book ever on horticulture?

Edited by Geoffrey Dixon (1962–68) and David Aldous, this three volume text book claims to be the first to cover the entire spectrum of horticulture and horticultural science from crop production through environmental contexts to social impacts and welfare benefits. Drawing on the accumulated knowledge and expertise of global experts in their fields, it provides a clear, detailed yet concise analysis of each topic, amply illustrated for ease of reading and understanding.

Published by Springer, 2014.

£314, or £126 for each volume.

The Wye Heritage Centre

“Our past shapes our future”

Francis Huntington - Honorary Secretary of the Wye College Agricola Club and Wye Village resident

The official opening of the Wye Heritage Centre in the Latin School was held on 15th October 2011. Since then the Centre has been open to the general public on the 1st and 3rd Saturday of the month. The Saturday morning openings have become very popular, with a steady stream of visitors enjoying coffee and home-made cake and becoming immersed in the history of Wye and Wye College.

Alumni involvement

Following the closure of the College in 2009 there was a real risk that, over time, the heritage of the College would be lost or at best become inaccessible. The launch of the Wye Heritage Centre was a highly significant step in securing its history and the story of its worldwide impact. Agricola Club members are playing a vital role in gifting material or allowing us to copy material that relates to the College. Thank you to those who have already offered their help.

We are also appealing to Agricola Club members to become members of the Wye Heritage Centre. In order to secure the future viability of the Centre, we are planning to expand the membership to at least 500 over the next 18 months. An annual subscription of £10 by bankers order will enable you to be a part of this vital activity. An application form is enclosed at the back of this Journal.

The Centre

Wye Heritage is currently operating as a Member's Association and will, during 2014, become a Registered Charity as a Charitable Incorporated Organisation. Once we achieve charitable status we are intending to negotiate a long lease on the Latin School in order to secure a permanent home for the Centre. The archives which form the 'Wye Collection' 9 (documents, photographs and archives relating to the former Wye College) as well as the archives of the Agricola Club are being progressively housed in the Latin School. They are currently being catalogued prior to being digitally scanned.

The Digital Archive

The Centre is now equipped with computers, scanning, photographic and recording equipment to enable images and documents to be copied and held on a catalogued and searchable database. Along with many other important documents we plan that the Journals of the Agricola Club and the South Eastern Agricultural College will be digitised and be available on line. An oral archive is also envisaged – it would be wonderful if past students volunteered to become a part of an 'Oral Archive' project. Please contact me if you would like to help: contact@wyeagricolaclub.org.uk

Accessions

During the year we have been gifted a significant quantity of material from a wide range of sources, including alumni and their families. Examples are:

- Two albums of postcards depicting scenes of the College and the surrounding area, mainly from the 1930's.
- Books from the library of the late Professor Ian Reid.
- Books and documents from the archives of the late Professor Louis Wain.
- Photographs of various sports teams.

- A selection of photographs of village events.
- A recent monograph (2013) on Swanley College by Donald Opitz.
- A fascinating record of the 1955 Diploma Course students attending year one of the two-year course on Tropical Agriculture, the second year being at the Imperial College of Tropic Agriculture in Trinidad.

We look forward to your sharing your personal archives with us.

The 2014 Programme

On Saturday 5th July we will be repeating the Strawberry Tea to raise funds for the Centre. On 19th July we will be continuing our series of poetry readings in the Latin School Garden; this year we will be paying tribute to the WWI poets with a public reading of a selection of their poems.

We have planned our 2014 Saturday Exhibitions, with the following topics being covered:

- Wye College Scarces River (Sierra Leone) Expedition. (Also on 19th July).
- Wye Maps.
- WWI Workshop – Assembling local history, including the South Eastern Agricultural College (Wye College) records of those who served in WWI.
- The history of Naccolt and the Naccolt brick works.

2014 Autumn Exhibition

Plans are well advanced for our 2014 Autumn Exhibition which is to be entitled 'WWI – Village and College'. A staggering number of Wye graduates were killed during the First World War as is attested by the 127 individuals listed on the

The Wye Heritage Centre, set in an attractive courtyard at the Latin School.

College War memorial in the Cloister Quad. We are assembling material that illustrates life in Wye and in the College during 1914–1918. Any help in resourcing material specific to the College from this period would be of great assistance.

Wye Treasures

We are also able to report that the Club and Wye Heritage are in detailed discussion with the College on how best to safeguard the many 'Wye Treasures' that are currently held in store by Imperial. In order to inform members of the Club of these Treasures we have published a list on the Club website, under the title Wye Treasures. The Heritage Centre continues to arrange with Imperial College the loan of portraits and other artefacts. Eventually we hope that key material will be housed in Wye rather than in South Kensington – in the world of preserving our history and heritage we are reminded that 'context' is of huge importance.

The way forward with your involvement

The activities of 2011–2013 have born the fruit of the previous two years of preliminary work. We now need to expand our hard working and dedicated band of volunteers to run the Centre and to collect and preserve the history, heritage and life blood of Wye College. It was an institution that throughout the 20th century made a unique contribution to the development of Agriculture, Horticulture and the Environment across the globe. Much of that work continues today elsewhere; however, it is vital that the original thinking, research and experiences that underpin today's work are properly recorded and honoured. An application form is in the green pages section at the back of the Journal; it only costs £10 a year to subscribe to Wye Heritage – please complete the application today. A gift or legacy would be particularly welcome to help secure the future financial viability of the Centre.

Wye Heritage is the organisation that will ensure that the above is achieved; the Wye College Agrícola Club and its members have a vital role to play.

Wye College treasures – portraits

Dr Kate Barrett CBE (1884-1977)

Over the last 18 months Wye Heritage has arranged for the loan of a number of portraits from the Wye College Treasures collection currently held by Imperial College in their picture store. To accompany this photograph of the portrait, the following brief note was prepared by Francis Huntington explaining the connection between Dr Barrett and the College.

Our thanks go to the Imperial Archivist, Anne Barrett, for her assistance in making these arrangements. To date we have exhibited portraits of Professor Louis Wain, Sir Edward Hardy, Dunstan Skilbeck and most recently Dr Kate Barrett.

We wish to acknowledge the contribution made to horticultural education by Swanley College and in particular the last Principal, Dr Kate Barrett CBE. Dr Barrett's initial training was at Swanley College, where she received the College's Diploma in 1904 and after which she became a Demonstrator in the College. She was then awarded a Scholarship to attend the Royal College of Science (Imperial College) to read for a three-year degree in Botany, which was awarded to her with honours in 1910. From 1910 to 1913 she lectured in botany at Swanley College, but in 1913 returned to South Kensington as a Demonstrator. In due course, she was awarded an M.Sc. and then a D.Sc. and became a 'past student' member of the Governing Body of Swanley College. In 1922 she returned to Swanley as their last Principal before its amalgamation with the South Eastern Agricultural College (Wye College) in 1946.

Whilst at Imperial she became friends with Brenda Colvin, Sylvia Crowe and Constance Spry, three women whose contribution to horticulture, landscape and garden design, flower arranging and education influenced practitioners throughout the 20th century. In particular Constance Spry, who lectured part time at Swanley, gave Kate Barrett much support during the difficult years of WWII when Swanley College was bombed and had to be evacuated.

Swanley College merged with SEAC in 1946 and shortly after became Wye College. At the same time, the Wye College Agricola Club merged with the Swanley Guild and from then until 1990, The Club was known as the Wye College Agricola Club and Swanley Guild.

In 1949 Dr Kate Barrett became a Fellow of Wye College – she was presented by Principal Dunstan Skilbeck at the 1949 Commemoration Ceremony.

For those who would like to know more about Swanley College, an excellent history of the College was published in 1980. More recently, in 2013 Donald Opitz, a researcher from the University of Chicago published a paper entitled Triumph of Brains over Brute – Women and Science at the Horticultural College, Swanley, 1890–1970, that includes further background to the founding of the College and the context of women's education.

Both these publications can now be viewed on the Agricola Club website in the subsection titled 'Swanley College'

2013 Lunch and Farm Walk –

We decided to break with tradition (or rather start a new tradition!) by not having a formal annual dinner in 2013 but instead holding an informal Hog Roast in the summer. Charles Course (1983–84), past Chairman of the Club, kindly agreed to host our first Hog Roast at Symonds Farm Power, Risby, Bury St Edmunds on Saturday, July 6th. Symonds Farm is the site of Charles' large anaerobic digester plant which turns maize into electricity for the surrounding area. So it was inevitable that a large silage bay was the unlikely setting for the Hog Roast...

About 100 Agricolae turned out for this event on a blisteringly hot day. The concrete base and walls of the silage clamp meant that it wasn't only the Hog that roasted that day! Tables and chairs were laid out for us and umbrellas were out in force to protect us against the sun. However, the heat was soon forgotten as conversations got underway and we all tucked in to a delicious Hog with all the trimmings, courtesy of a local pub.

From the top of the silage wall Charles outlined the running of the AD plant and then took small groups of 15 people or so, round the plant on a fascinating tour. A full report on how the plant operates follows on page 46. Our grateful thanks go to Charles for hosting this event.

As most of you know by now, this year will see a return of the formal dinner back at Wye for the first time since the End of an Era Ball in 2009. However, this means that next year, 2015, we will be looking for an Agricola member to host a Hog Roast somewhere in the UK.

Births, marriages, deaths and general updates

Births

Giles Kingsley-Pallant (1997–2000) and his wife, Hayley, have recently been graced by a baby boy whom they have named Hugo George.

Deaths

Edward Anthony 'Tony' Cory (South Eastern Agriculture College, 1930–32) died on 17th March 2013 at the age of 102 years, when he was the oldest surviving member of the Club.

Bob Bell OBE, FIMechE, FIAgrE (he never used the post-nominals) (staff 1960 – 72) who had lived since 1987 in Llangollen North Wales and was previously Head of Overseas Department of NIAE Silsoe, passed away in March 2014 aged 86. Cheerful and positive to the last, he was at home where he wanted to be. He had been remarkably active through his eighties walking many miles in the beautiful local hills and Snowdonia. A secondary bone cancer affected his mobility in the last 18 months but he kept going with a fantastic 'off road zimmer' with pneumatic tyres and disc brakes!! Then more recently out in a wheel chair every day until a sit down on the bed caused a broken femur. Bed-bound, his final weeks were spent at home with quite outstanding local care support of Hospice at Home. He now rests in peace, very well remembered locally.

Written by Peter Bell, his son

Michael Case (1953–56) died on Monday 3rd March 2014 after a short illness.

David Gordon Jenner (1949–52) died on 5th March 2013 in a nursing home near Ripon, N. Yorks. He and his wife Norma had moved there in July 2012 so that David could be near two of his children in the final months of his life.

Prof. Frank Wightman (1950–58) was a member of Wye College Agricola Club for many years. I am sad to report that he passed away on 10 October, 2013 in Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Frank was 85.

His degrees were a PhD and DSc from Leeds University, and an FRSC, obtained in Canada. We moved to Canada from the ARC, Wye, in November 1956. Frank retired as Professor of Biology from Carleton University, Ottawa, in 1991. Beryl Wightman was married to Frank for 57 years; they have five married children and eight grandchildren.

Peter Whittall-Williams (1960–63?) died on July 17th, 2013 aged 73 from kidney cancer. With his wife and soulmate Sally whom he met at Wye, Peter had built up a nationwide agricultural recruitment business based at Ross-on-Wye. He first joined FSL, a national animal feed company as a salesman, soon becoming regional manager for Southern England. On returning to Herefordshire they built up over a period of 30 years the Agricultural Recruitment and Management company (ARM). He was the proud father of four daughters and a devoted grandfather to his nine grandchildren.

Robin Mary Donaldson (née Thomas) (1965–70) died on 1 May 2014 aged 75 in Maryland, USA, following a major stroke. Robin was a 30 year resident of Centreville where she had been retired for the past 20 years. She was the daughter of the late Frank and Edna Thomas of Sydney, Australia. During her long and varied career she had worked in Australia, Britain and Canada before settling in the United States. She was an IBM-trained computer analyst and database manager who worked in Washington DC for the Brookings Institute and the International Food Policy Research Institute. While at Wye, she was the first computer programmer to be appointed as such on the Wye staff.

Her husband, Graham Donaldson writes:

Fortuitously we arrived at Wye College, the Agricultural Science School of the University of London in Kent, England. They liked what I could do and gave me a lectureship. They were delighted with Robin's analytical skills and quickly found her a job as advisor in the Biostats Department, where she helped make many budding scientists look good! They called her "greased lightning".

John McInerney (1957–60) was among those who offered a tribute in which he remembered the duration of their the two families' friendship, and added: "This long joint history has shared families coming and growing up, enjoyed many productive work-related episodes from combine capacity to rural development, but most importantly has been underpinned by a deep and rewarding personal relationship between us all that always immediately picked up where it left off even after sometimes quite extended periods of physical separation"

A mini Wye reunion, David Bennet (1953–56)

In the usual spirit of friendship and collaboration, I visit any Agricola Club members close by when travelling. Last August my friend John Lampitt (1953–56) decided to make my visit an occasion for a Mini Wye Reunion at his farm in Warwickshire.

Place: Thelsford Farm, Charlecote, Warwick. Date: 27 August 2013.

Thomas 'Tom' Reeve Hawkins (1965–69)

See Obituaries.

Norman Goodwin (1950–53)

Geoffrey Bonnett (1951–54)

Sally Boston (1952–55)

K Clarke (née Powell) (1955–58)

Douglas Collins (1946–49) on January 11th, 2014

News of Members

Helen Hughes (1947–51) writes, "As an older member of the Club, I was interested in a photo in last year's Journal sent in by Robin Graham. I will remember Viv Booth, the tractor driver, and especially his father Frank, the shepherd, who taught me all I know about sheep, including how to shear – Kent style.

The man in the cap could well be Phil Keen who was in my year and often sported that head gear. He went on to become Principal of the agricultural college in his beloved Somerset.

I must be one of the few without a great C.V. to my name but I never regret the years spent at Wye. Its demise still makes me angry. I have three scientific daughters, one with a PhD, and spend my old age gardening – my own and other peoples, as much as knees and back will allow."

Mrs O.G. Aburrow (1950–53) writes "The garden is a disaster now that I cannot tend it. Last year was not a good year for a beginner, but a friend raised onions, carrots and potatoes. Now she has hurt her back, so is not in the garden. Now, as the soil was in good heart, I have a luxuriant crop of weeds – rather depressing!

Celebration of a Diamond Wedding

John Everard Hosking (1950–53) married Joan Cecily Whitaker (1948–51) on September 16th 1953. The Club offers them many congratulations!

The articles about Professor and Mrs Wain called to mind the two or three times I babysat for them and also for Allan Jackson's three children.

Rosemary Wain taught Chemistry to my two nephews at Wheatley in Oxfordshire between about 1974 and 1979.

Diana Jones (née Stacy) (1952–56) and husband Keith Jones (1952–57) wrote from Tasmania: "Thanks for keeping us oldies in touch. It's been 60 years since we met at Wye!

Joy Lacombe (1954–57) visited us last year with her husband. We have had a trickle of ex-Wye visitors of our vintage and younger. This is great since, as we near 80, travelling long distances is no longer an option. We are near a lot of Pacific islands which are warm and sunny, speak English and are not too expensive to reach or stay at.

I doubt either of us could survive an English winter now, even in Devonshire where we used to live.

We are grateful that you and other younger people have been able to keep our Wye umbilical cord intact. We do enjoy still getting the Wye Journal. This brings back so many memories of people as well as place. You will see we have a different email: keithmalcolmjones@gmail.com

Phil and Sue (née Bancroft) Moss (1958–61) continue to live on the west coast of Scotland, though they have moved over the road to a new house, designed by Phil, who also did much of the interior work. The house is extremely eco-friendly, with excellent insulation, air-source heat pump, wood-burning stove and heat recovery system, as well as solar panels. Phil continues to garden in his 'spare time', but has become very involved with bees. As Bee Health Convener for the Scottish Beekeepers' Association, he is regularly called on for advice, as well as meetings with other beekeepers and Scottish and UK government officials. Sue is a member of the Scottish Women's Rural Institute (SWRI) and Lorn Quilters, so continues to sew many different items, and regularly wins at shows. We are both members of the Royal Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland and visit the Royal Highland Show every year, (the best show in the UK if not the world!) and would welcome a meeting with any other Agricola Club members, there or on the west coast. We much enjoyed a visit from John Andersen (1963–66). We are both regular supporters of our local churches, and Phil, having been an elder for a number of years, was ordained a lay worship leader in 2013.

John Alexander (1958–61) wrote: "Thanks to the miracles of modern plumbing, I remain fairly active. So if you go down in the woods in West Wiltshire today, you may come upon a 'grumpy old man' in an old Land Rover, armed with a billhook, chainsaw and a shotgun! Don't worry, he is fairly harmless – just be careful how you mention grey squirrels, badgers and politicians!! If you don't find him, he will probably be in France!!"

Roger Packham (1963–66) wrote from Australia last year to say he was looking forward to the '63–'66 reunion in Huntington on 5th June 2013. "Twenty-two people are booked to go and I will be visiting John Harbour (1963–66) in Dorset before that, as he cannot attend. Also been in contact with Sally Osgerby (née Davies (1962–66) and John Walters (1964–67) but they will both be overseas when I am in the UK.

I am still working with Richard Bawden and we have coffee every week. Robin Lowe (1963–66) is organising the reunion and we are hoping to get a few people to write a synopsis of their 'Life after Wye' for the Journal..."

Ladies 1963–66 reunion

Mary Hill wrote: "The tale behind this picture is that in 1963 there were only eight women in the first year—the lowest number ever. There were loads from the 1962 intake who were repeating the year. Of the eight, one was a Rothschild from America experiencing a British university for a year. Three others failed the first year. Then we were four, who then all completed the course - two Agrics and two Hortics. Jane and I were the only women Agrics, as all the retakes were Hortics".

Congratulations to the following pair of Hortics

Prof Geoff Dixon (1962–65) wrote: "I have recently been informed that I have been awarded Honorary Membership of the International Society for Horticultural Science (ISHS); I am only the 5th Briton to gain this award in the 150 year history of ISHS. The other four were / are Dr F Tubbs who was Director of East Malling in the 1950s and early 1960s, Dr Roger Folley (Wye College economist), Prof Don Tindall (tropical vegetable specialist at Cranfield) [all deceased] and Mr Chris Brickell (ex Director General of the RHS and past President of ISHS). There are in total about 40 Hon. Members. The award is for meritorious services to the Society and international horticulture over many years. Notably, Wye College has produced 40% of the recipients of this Award; that might say something about what has been destroyed! The award will be given at the Society's General Assembly to be held at the International Horticultural Congress in Brisbane in August 2014".

(Prof Dixon was a Horticulture undergrad 1962–1965; PhD student 1965–1968; External Examiner 1990–1995 and taught in the Horticulture BSc and Countryside Management MSc in 1998 as an external lecturer and prepared a review of Wye Horticulture for the Principal). Ed.

The RHS has awarded Bernard Sparkes (Staff 1967–84) their Associate of Honour in recognition of his contribution to horticulture. There are only 100 holders at any one time making this a very special award. Bernard informed us recently that:

"I am almost retired – 71 in a few weeks – but do one day a month consultancy to keep an eye on things.

We are all very well and the two boys Max and Jason are both happily married and working very hard in horticulture and giving us five grandchildren ranging in ages from 18 years down to 11 months. The garden and the grandchildren keep Linda and I busy and I try to play golf twice a week!"

The Scarcies Rivers gang

Jeremy Groome, George Goddard, Chris Lonsdale, Paddy Johnson, Tony Packman, Chris Warn and Doug Clarke (all from between the years 1962–66) will descend upon Wye in July for a reunion to celebrate 50 years since their college-supported expedition to the Scarcies River region in Sierra Leone. They will be joined by a couple of their contemporaries Chris Gibbs and possibly David Gore. The story of the expedition and potted Life After Wye stories can be found on pages 52–66.

Peter Aagaard (1965–68)

We have received more information on an award made to one of our alumni last year. Peter Aagaard (always the first name on our address list!) was recognised for his contribution in the improvement of conservation farming in Zambia in the Queen's 2013 Birthday Honours list. He was presented with an MBE by the British High Commissioner James Thornton, who said:

"I am delighted that Peter Aagaard, Executive Director of the Zambian Conservation Farming Unit, has received an MBE in this year's Birthday Honours, for services to the development of conservation farming in Africa. In 1995, Peter founded the CFU as a way to integrate conservation farming practices, knowledge and technologies into Zambian small-scale farming operations. Conservation farming practice enable small and medium-scale farmers to move away from environmentally destructive, low-yielding and costly conventional farming practices. It also raises productivity while lowering in-farm costs and environmental impact. In 1996, the Zambian CFU started with less than 150 farmers. Thanks in large part to the directorship, vision and agricultural technical expertise of Peter, it now extends its service to approximately 415,000 farmers across Zambia, Kenya, Malawi, Uganda and Tanzania”.

Libby Scott (née Orton 1966–69) The following letter from Libby was received by Francis Huntington last year: “Just a note to let you know (or rather Lucy may be interested!) that at the time of the ‘End of an Era Ball’, I managed to take a cutting from that lovely, glossy-leaved rose at Withersdane; the one with a beautiful, single, creamy-white flower. Lucy didn’t know what it was at the time and suspected that it may have come in a collection from foreign parts, perhaps as a seed? Anyway, it flowered for the first time this year and is looking very healthy – a nice reminder of Wye.

We have moved to Rob Seeley’s old house (which my parents bought from him and Rosemary in 1980 on retiring from farming). It’s a great joy – very light and lovely (and a very large garden), warm (we have just installed a log boiler since we have a wood) and much easier with no steps or stairs for Eric who is very disabled. And still input from Christo Lloyd in the plants around – he came up visiting quite a bit.

25 years on...

Bob Davies (1964–67). Earlier this year Bob Davies stepped down as clerk of course at Ludlow racecourse after 30 years. He will retain the role of company secretary, race planning and receptionist.

Bob was champion jockey three times, sharing it in 1968–69 and winning it outright in 1969–70 and 1971–72. He also picked up one of the best spare rides in history when he rode Lucius to win the 1978 Grand National.*

"Davies was one of the first professional jockeys to go into racecourse management, the main qualification previously having been to have attended Sandhurst. For that, Davies has his headmaster to thank. It was a short conversation when he announced that he was leaving school to go racing. His headmaster replied: "No you're not, you'll go to university. I'll get the forms, you fill them in."

Consequently he studied agriculture at Wye. At the same time he was effectively first jockey to Les Kennard taking 203 rides one season and attending rather fewer lectures. When Jockey Club stewards asked how he could afford to remain an amateur, he replied: "I get a student grant, my father pays my petrol and as the principal spends more time hunting than he does in college, he doesn't mind."

Source: Daily Telegraph 18th February 2104.

**Editor's note. Our baby daughter Lucy had recently been christened and an Irish bookmaker gave me a tip that this horse (Lucius) was worth a punt. Too much of a coincidence for me; Bob in the saddle and the name connection. So I put a 50p each way bet on it. That high risk investment made me about £4 profit! If only I had had the courage (and the money)....! Incidentally, when Bob was preparing to race whilst at college, we would occasionally play squash against him in a polythene track suite to shed some pounds! (that's him....not us!)*

Eunice A Simmons (1987–2002): Eunice is now Professor of Sustainable Environments in addition to her role as Dean of Animal, Rural and Environmental Sciences at Nottingham Trent University. She is working on creating a low carbon campus and reported that there is considerable investment in the rural and teaching estate at the university.

Mark Long (MSc. 2000) is now Director of the Green Forum, an industry group aiming to increase the involvement of the horticulture industry in sustainable projects.

Obituaries

Thomas 'Tom' Reeve Hawkins (1965–68)

A tribute by Peter Johnson (1965–68)

This attendance says it all but may I contribute cheerfully from an East Anglian perspective?

The three children had a normal rural childhood; a love of the countryside, knowledge of the seasons and the knack of horse riding became intuitive. Stuart and Thomas went to the Downs prep school then Stuart to Millfield and Thomas to Rugby School. Theirs was a close 40-year brotherhood, their shared angelic appearance belying their prankster skills. For 10 years at Rugby and thereafter, Thomas became Tom.

At school he was seen as ever cheerful, down to earth, somewhat cheeky and absolutely direct in his manner, which was much appreciated – one always knew where you stood with him. Despite school convictions for betting and drinking his huge character saw him Head of House, a member of Levee (prefect) and a regular in the Rugby XV where a leg was broken.

We met in 1965 when Tom followed his sister to Wye College in Kent – she gaining a good degree and a fine husband, he to continue his battle of attrition with any Examining body he encountered.

He was soon a regular in the rugby team with his robust, aggressive 'Route One' approach rapidly appreciated by his new chums – a great man to have at one's side. He chose to play in the front row, normally the preserve of the less bright. But his shrewdness showed itself quickly – our penniless scrum half offered a lift to an early away match in his A35 van and was grateful when Tom agreed to fill the tank, providing that for next week's trip it would be reciprocated. Tom then came with the monster Bristol car. Cars and clothing, how he carelessly regarded both and, come to think of it, how his driving style was the same as his rugby.

At Wye he avoided the critical first year examination by feigning Undulant Fever until the danger was passed. But let me pass on the words of his Professor lecturer, Graham Milbourn, to sum up his university career. You need to know he took a First Class degree and was awarded the University Medal for Management Skill.

He writes: "One wonders how he achieved such high academic success. How could I forget this carefree, shirt-sleeved student with dishevelled hair, up to every prank in the book, usually late to my lectures and who took no notes at all – why did I bother? The result was that he helped ensure Wye was a force to be reckoned with and his great personality contributed so much when Wye was at its height".

Wye was not the end of his training and he was always seeking knowledge and to broaden his skills just as he would encourage it in others. He intended to go to the Harvard Business School; it is a shame he didn't – it would have done them good.

Tom accrued an army of God-children, mostly here today. I know the regard which they held for him, the care, encouragement and support he quietly offered. They have much for which to thank him. One seven year old was visited by him carrying a black plastic bag with apologies for previous neglect of duties. Out of the bag came, "This is for your 7th birthday, this for your 6th Christmas, this for your 6th birthday...." situation retrieved, child in awe. That same God-child working a decade later with the Black Country ladies doing hop-training was told by them that with Thomas, the Almighty had "thrown away the mould". Even they knew.

Thomas's business affairs were like a Victorian lady's ankles – heavily compartmentalised, one never saw the complete picture, least of all the bank manager or the Revenue. Only one head contained all the detail. By way of example, when I asked Gerald Blandford if Thomas had done the proper thing in asking for Sarah's hand he happily confirmed that he had – but had failed to mention it the week before when negotiating the potato land rent.

Distain for Examiners was shared with that given to the un-ambitious and the jobsworth, but real contempt was reserved for the poor politician and correspondence would flow. Sometimes this paid off, like when the Single Farm Payment was extended to the hop crop.

To do business, or for that matter, socialise, with him was to expect the unexpected; even that would leave you woefully unprepared. Some who found this too disconcerting to continue contact still held his acumen, vision and judgement in high regard.

Thirty years ago Thomas became involved with John Farbon in an old fashioned, two-man hop trading business in Worcester – Charles Faram. He felt that the hop industry and trade had its salvation in its own hands and worked non-stop to that end: 'Hops from England' was his strapline. Although he was probably not an organisation man he could see ahead and choose able colleagues who also met his beer tasting criteria.

None was more able than Paul Corbett, the managing director for 20 years. Allying his management skills to Thomas's understanding of, and talent for, the hop trade, these two took the business forward. At times this is a risky game

Letters to the Editor

He says 'Ya' and is keen on tennis

The following letter home was written by a young lady at Nonninton College of PE during the 60s. I acquired it, with her permission to publish, after a discussion over dinner. Its attraction is the innocent simplicity but my attention fixed on the reference to a young man from Wye College who had invited her to the Hunt Ball. The names have been left out to protect the innocent.

Nonnington College of P.E.

Dear Mummy and Daddy,
Thank you very much for your letter. Thanks also for sending the tennis racquet, etc. It arrived perfectly O.K. I'm sorry but I shall now need another parcel. On Saturday it was the college dance which was very good & this student from Wye has asked me to the Hunt Ball on Nov. 6th – a terribly posh do at a hotel in Maidstone. His name is ..... tho' he is not Welsh and his father owns a big farm just outside of .....

Actually, his father was at Cambridge at the same time as Dad. I know you would like him because he is similar to ..... He's got a car & and he came over here on Sunday afternoon with all the arrangements, etc. The dance starts at 9.30pm & goes on until 2.30 am. So he's going to book me a room in the girls hostel at Wye and then on the Sat its Wye bonfire to which all Nonnington get a block invite anyway. We all join a torch procession thro' the town. So it should be a lovely weekend unsuited to the faint of heart but together – unstinting support given to a trusted colleague – Farams has developed until today it has ten times as many staff, an office in Oregon, thriving international connections, and a reputation to match. Thomas was very proud of the team at Farams, their new buildings and knowledge. They have been well placed to grow with the renewed interest in craft brewing. There will be no better memorial to Thomas than the 150th anniversary of Farams in 2015 – its rude health and standing, the results of his involvement.
Do you know, he sounds just like the Thomas

It seems from outside that these last eight years have produced a transformation. Life is, like the seven Ages of Man, the trajectory of a thrown ball. Early acceleration and ascent, mid-flight excitement then descent. The arrival of Sarah seems to me to have been the start of a new wonder era rather than any decline. Thomas and

I spoke the morning after John's birth. Thomas had told the farm staff of his pride at having an heir and producing him within a year of marriage. This feat was applauded until one of the team added that he and his wife had succeeded after four months.

A family of their own changed things. Who will forget Thomas's announcement at John's grand christening that "I cannot believe it. It is like a dream come true". In future years John and his sibling will have much in which to have pride. Ladies and Gentlemen, these children will not have as long as we have had to have their lives enriched by knowing Thomas. We should remind them. They should know that he was indeed unique.

As they would say in Essex: Thomas Hawkins - Legend.

twins – he says 'ya!! He's keen on tennis & they've a tennis court and a ballroom.

I had a letter from Gran & Gramp & they enclosed 8 stamps. They've gone to Cambridge for a fortnight today.

Today we had a swimming lecture – it was ghastly – we had to jump off the top diving board and I was petrified (at least only those that can swim).

Oh, I forgot to tell you, could you send my blue evening dress, gold shoes, a petticoat on the floor of my wardrobe & my pearly beads that you gave me which are in the left-hand little drawer of my dressing table, in a box, please. Send them soonish, won't you, please. By the way, his parents are keen Libs.

I managed to get to Wye because they sent an SOS for 12 Noning girls and as some third years knew him and I wanted to go they put our names on the list first. At the weekend, the kitchen provides gorgeous cakes for tea and then soup and bread & tins of chicken mixture or baked beans or something like that.

I told you he came yesterday – well we went to a gorgeous oldy-worldy tea place for tea – home made cakes and scones, etc.

We only cycle into the village actually. We hitch everywhere else. I hope you don't mind. Only all the people in the village know Nonnington girls for miles around!

Must close now as I am wilting. Lots of love, xx

A pint for a pint

Hello John,

No doubt you like all of us are probably sickened to see the chaos wrought by the recent bad weather, what with floods all over the place and seemingly either no money in Government coffers or a political unwillingness to sort out the issue.

One idea that crosses my mind, with Somerset being so important to the dairy industry, is summed up by the simple slogan "A Pint (of beer) for a Pint (of milk)".

How difficult would it be for this country to impose a head tax (equivalent to the cost of a pint of beer) to secure an independent ring-fenced fund that would enable land drainage to be put back into the hands of those that can handle the issue without Government interference or indifference? My simple calculation says that could raise upwards of £100M annually without too much pain and at least people would know what it was for! Does anyone with Wye connections or political influence have any better ideas? Or can we guarantee that once the worst is over the problem will again be shelved under whatever government is in power until the next time around?

With best wishes,
Dr Barry Perry (1963–66)

Corrections to 2012–13 Journal

Page 21 – I received a letter from Cecil Jordan (1949–52) explaining that it was the above Jim Tice who put in so much effort to enlist support from his year group's to attend the 2012 dinner, not Cecil. (But it was Cecil who tied my bow tie at that dinner... I hope he comes to the next one! – Ed).

At roughly the same time, Jim Tice emailed us saying that he had been contacted by Cecil informing that he had been given credit for all the work Jim had put in trying to contact his contemporaries who graduated in 1952.

In the end, they were the only two from their year who made it! But good for them and apologies for the confusion.

Page 27 – We reported that Simon Rust (1982–86) had died: we did not make it up; somebody must have informed us. However, Giles Cannon (1983–86) reported that Simon was in fine health when he recently visited him and his family in Scotland and was surprised to hear of his demise when he texted him. Sorry Simon...but very happy to learn the truth!

Wye College Agricola Club Minutes

of the 61st AGM held on Friday 3rd January at 4pm Latin School, Imperial College London, Wye Campus

1 Apologies for absence

Jamie Clifford, Geoff Dixon, Henry Holdstock, Martin Rickatson, and Jane Walters.

2 To confirm the Minutes of the 60th AGM held on 29th September 2012

The 2012 Annual General Meeting was held on 29th September before the Dinner at Cirencester and the Minutes were published in the 2012–2013 Journal. The meeting approved the Minutes and the Chairman signed them as a true and accurate record.

3 Matters arising

There were no matters arising.

4 Chairman's report

John Walters stated that one of his main objectives in 2014 is to recruit new members to the committee.

5 Secretary's report

The Secretary sent out e-newsletters in July and November and regularly updated the Agricola Facebook with new posts. The website now needs an enthusiastic member who would be prepared to update the content, once it has been re-designed. We will need to change our web host in 2014 when the present contract comes to an end. This would be an ideal opportunity for a revamp and new involvement.

Club support and funding

- Wye Heritage Exhibitions 2011 & 2012 – The 'Wye Hops' & the 'Professor Louis Wain Exhibition' boards were on display at the Hog Roast summer event in July 2013.

- Wye Heritage Exhibition 2013 – plans for the November 2013 'Wye College across the World' were not far enough advanced so this was postponed.

- 2014 Exhibition – WWI – it is anticipated that there will be a section devoted to the past students and staff of the South Eastern Agricultural College who served and/or died in WWI. Member support has not been forthcoming but Janet Astels, Wye Heritage Archivist, will be extracting relevant material from the archives.

- Wye College Agricola Lecture – nothing further has been heard from Canterbury Christ Church University (CCCU) reference their plans for the proposed Annual Wye College Agricola Club Lecture. The member of staff promoting the idea has moved to Duchy College in Cornwall. This topic will now be taken off future agendas.

College treasures and buildings

- The Jacobean Statues (Ancient Britons) – Six statues have now been returned to the Minstrels' Gallery in the Old Hall and the seventh is now on permanent display in the Heritage Centre.

- College Portraits – The portrait of Dunstan Skilbeck was on display in the Heritage Centre during the autumn. From January 2014, the portrait of Dr Kate Barrett, last Principal of Swanley Horticultural College, will be on loan and on display.

- Medieval College Buildings – It was reported at the last meeting that Wye Parish Council is promoting the idea of the buildings for community use. It is hoped that a proposal and outline business plan will be prepared. The Council has made informal approaches to the Heritage Lottery Fund and has received an encouraging response.

- Treasures lists – Francis met with Anne Barrett, Imperial College Archivist, during November. She has agreed to forward the annotated list (BH classification) to the College Treasures Committee for their consideration. These will be put on the Agricola website with an appropriate introduction and highlighted in the Journal.

- Wye School – a Free School, opened last September with ninety Year 7 pupils. They have a three year lease on the Kempe Centre and hope to expand into the Edwardian buildings.

A Club member asked whether members of the committee were aware that Sir Philip Neame was awarded the Victoria Cross in December 1914? On 14th December 2014 a paving stone will be laid in his honour in Faversham.

6 Treasurer's report and to receive the Club accounts for 2012–2013

The Club's accounts were tabled.

Last year's final accounts include the 2012 Cirencester Dinner and the 2013 Hog Roast. Both events were very close to breaking even. Subscription income increased slightly, due probably to the efficient management of the database. Journal costs were smaller, resulting in a lower demand for funds from the Club's endowment. The net effect was a very small deficit.

The meeting approved the accounts.

7 Memorial Fund – Trustees' report and accounts 2012-2013

- The year ending 31st July showed a small deficit on the income and expenditure account after support to applicants to the fund of £4.5k and transfers to the Club of £7.5k.

- Portfolio performance during that year was satisfactory at a net dividend yield of just over 3% and an overall capital growth of over 10%.

- The accounts as inspected by Messrs Chaverey's were approved and signed at the AGM of the Memorial Fund held earlier in the day.

8 Appointment of Independent Examiners of the Accounts for 2013–2014

The Treasurer, Paul Webster, recommended that Chaverey's be appointed to act as Independent Examiner; the membership agreed. The 2012–2013 accounts will appear in the 2013–2014 Journal.

9 Journal Editor's report

John Walters has agreed to take on the role of Editor and already has a good amount of copy lined up for this year's Journal. Various companies are being researched to print and mail out the Journal.

10 To receive the draft of the revised Club Regulations

One or two paragraphs in the Club Regulations need to be updated and, as required, members will be apprised of these changes in the Journal.

11 Elections

Committee – there are three vacancies.

Mr Chris Waters (1983–1986) was nominated by Sue Atkinson and seconded by John Walters. Chris studied commercial horticulture and is Managing Director of Leathams, a specialist food company.

Post meeting note: David Simmons offered to be co-opted and Francis sought, and received, approval from the committee.

Vice Presidents and Honorary Members – there were no nominations for Vice Presidents or Honorary Members.

Regarding frequency of meetings, it was agreed that the committee should meet twice a year, in June and again at the same time as the AGM and Dinner.

12 Future plans for Club events

The 2014 Dinner will be held in the Kempe Centre in Wye on Saturday 27th September 2014 with the Annual General Meeting beforehand.

The 2013 summer event went well and the committee would be happy to hold a similar event in 2015.

13 Report on the Wye Heritage Centre

Wye Heritage is a child of the Agricola Club in that the initial idea was to assemble the archive 'owned' by Wye College; to this end the support of the Agricola Club is fundamental. Wye Heritage will soon be a registered charity and will then be able to secure a long lease on the Latin School. The Centre is happy to receive materials from Agricola Members.

14 Update on Imperial College's current plans for Wye Campus

Imperial College have now produced their Master Plan for the campus but it is not yet in the public domain. They will be seeking outline planning permission for between 270 and 280 houses to be built on land adjacent to Occupation Road and at Withersdane.

15 Any other business

There being no other business the meeting closed at 7 pm.

Wye College Agricola Club AGM Agenda

Saturday 27th September 2014, Wye Campus

The 62nd Annual General Meeting will be held on Saturday 27th September in the Kempe Centre, Wye Campus, Wye, starting promptly at 5.30 pm.

Agenda

- 1 Apologies for absence.
- 2 Minutes - confirm the minutes of the 61st AGM published in the Journal.
- 3 Matters arising.
- 4 Chairman's Report.
- 5 Secretary's Report.
- 6 Treasurer's Report and to receive the Club accounts for 2013–2014.
- 7 Memorial Fund: Trustees Report and Accounts 2013–2014.
- 8 Appointment of Independent Examiners of the Accounts for 2014–2015.
- 9 Journal Editor's Report.
- 10 To receive and vote on the revisions to the Club Regulations (See revisions below).
- 11 Elections: Committee – there are 7 vacancies.
Vice Presidents – Nominations to be received by the Secretary at least 14 days before the meeting.
Honorary Membership – to receive and vote on the committee's recommendations
- 12 Future plans for Club events.
- 13 Report on the 'Wye Heritage Centre'.
- 14 Update on Imperial College's current plans for the Wye Campus.
- 15 Any other business.
Revision of regulations The following proposal will be put before the 2014 AGM.
"It is proposed that paragraphs 1, 4 & 12 be revised as printed in the 2014 Journal".
The current and proposed versions are shown below.

1. Objectives – 2002 Version

The Club shall be called "The Wye College Agricola Club" and its objects shall be to keep all who have been at Wye College, Swanley College or Imperial College at Wye in touch with one another and with the College and to promote the professional development of its members.

1. Proposed 2014 Revision

The Club shall be called "The Wye College Agricola Club" and its objects shall be to keep all who have been at Wye College, Swanley College or Imperial College at Wye in touch with one another and with the former College and to promote the professional development of its members.

4. Committee of Management – 2002 version

The management of the Club shall be in the hands of a committee consisting of the President, Honorary Treasurer, Honorary Editor, Honorary Secretary and members formally advising senior management of Imperial College at Wye, up to ten full members, and up to three co-opted members. The President and Vice-president of the Imperial College at Wye Students Union and the Imperial College at Wye Provost shall be ex-officio members of the Committee. The Trustees of the Discretionary Funds shall be de facto members of the Committee.

4. Proposed 2014 Revision

The management of the Club shall be in the hands of a committee consisting of the President, Honorary Treasurer, Honorary Editor, Honorary Secretary, up to ten full members, and up to three co-opted members. The Trustees of the Agricola Club Memorial Fund shall be de facto members of the Committee.

12 Imperial Trust – 2002 version

The Committee shall nominate up to two members of the Club to be appointed as a Trustees of the Imperial Trust. The Trustees shall report to the Annual Meeting of the Club.

12. This paragraph to be omitted.

Wye Village – now and then

A round up of latest developments in Wye, plus a glimpse of the village it once was.

The new Wye Free School that opened in 2013 with a complement of 60 pupils. The Kempe Centre has been transformed into classrooms and an indoor gym.

Hair today? A new pub where there was once a ladies hairdresser.

The Kings Head has been transformed into a fine dining establishment with rooms.

As well as a returning bakery, Wye now benefits from a ladies dress shop and another tasteful gift and card shop.

The Wife of Bath – now closed and up for sale.

Akerman's was the local source of sweets and cigarettes until it closed in 1968. Left: exterior of shop in 1971. Right: Mrs Akerman behind the counter in 1963. Akermans is now the home of John (1964–67) and Jane Walters.

Wye's Jacobean Statues

(formerly called the 'Ancient Britons')

This overview of the history of these amazing artefacts has been written by Jenny Oram, the Secretary of the Wye Historical Society. The text of this article was written for the Society and appears in Wye Local History (2014).

The College at Wye comprises a variety of buildings whose origins span five centuries. The oldest are medieval and are Grade-1 listed; they house an impressive Jacobean staircase. This has three flights and has newels that were once surmounted by painted wooden statues, known as the 'Ancient Britons'. It is unclear how many statues there were originally, but today just seven remain. There is one tall male figure, a smaller male and five females.

July 6, 2012 was an important date in the 400 years history of the statues. With the permission of their owner, Imperial College, the seven statues were briefly displayed in the Wye Heritage Centre (the Latin School building on Wye High Street) and, as far as is known, this was the first time that these exquisite statues had been made available for the general public to enjoy. Furthermore, July 2012 marked the close of the most recent, unexpected chapter in their history during which they left the College premises and passed from, and then back into, Imperial College ownership.

This episode highlighted two significant issues. First, whether the statues were covered by the Grade-1 listing of the oldest part of the College to which they belong (and therefore needed listed-building consent before they were moved) and secondly, the importance of the statues to an understanding of the Jacobean staircase, which is a major feature of the old building. The public display of the statues provided an opportunity for a leading expert on Jacobean staircases, Dr Lee Prosser (Curator of Historic Buildings with the Royal Historic Palaces charity), briefly to examine them and the staircase and to produce the first report in sixty years dedicated to furthering our understanding of their significance.

Historical overview

Founded in 1447 as a college of priests with a school attached, the buildings that formed the college passed into secular hands in 1545 when the chantries were dissolved. A local family, the Twysdens first leased and then purchased the buildings in 1612, and it was around this time that the staircase was almost certainly built. (Both 1610 and 1622 have been suggested as possible dates: the latter based on a lost painted inscription.) After the Twysdens the medieval buildings remained in private ownership until 1894; throughout this period the statues continued to adorn the newels of the staircase. The earliest published reference to them is in W. S. Morris's The History and Topography of Wye (1842). This refers to a Mr Parsons [the Revd

Philip Parsons, who was Perpetual Curate (vicar and Master of Wye College at the time] writing in 1794, who observed that 'The Staircase, with figures of ancient Britons at each landing place...' were among the 'remains of antiquity' in the medieval buildings. In the late 1800s two watercolours of the staircase, showing statues on the newels, were painted either by Constance or Gertrude Beard (sisters, whose family lived at Withersdane Hall). The statues' fortunes changed sometime after the acquisition of the buildings for the new South Eastern Agricultural College which opened in 1894. At some point after this the statues were removed from the newels and stored away in order to keep them safe. More specifically, H. H. Glasscock, a lecturer at Wye College who was interested in local history, was told in the 1960s that the statues were removed because 'students pelted them'.

Stored in minstrel's gallery

Precisely when and where the statues (and how many) were 'stored away' is unknown but it seems that sometime after 1906 they may have been put in the Minstrels' Gallery of the Old Hall. That some of the statues were in the Gallery prior to the Second World War is indicated by the recollection of George Maughan, a student at the College between 1937 and 1940. He clearly remembers wondering what the dwarf-like figures that stood on the gallery/balcony in the dining hall were. 'We humble students were never allowed in such areas'. He also has a 'vague memory of something outside Mr Vickers's [the Vice-Principal's] office ...'. This may be a reference to one of the statues that, at some point, was fixed to the wall of the corridor outside the Principal's drawing room (which later became the Senior Common Room).

There is no record of what happened to the statues during the war years when the college was requisitioned by the army. But, in 1946/47, when the College was undergoing extensive refurbishment, they were photographed standing on the floor of the Parlour which adjoins the Old Hall. Sometime thereafter six of the statues were replaced in the Gallery, at first probably on the floor then later, on plinths attached to the wall (as shown in a photograph dated 1958); the seventh statue was put back in the corridor. Once in place the statues remained in their respective positions until 2009 when Wye College, by then merged with Imperial College, closed.

The legal status of the statues

Tracing the history of the location of the statues became an issue in 2011 when the question was raised as to whether they were covered by the Grade-1 listing of the medieval part of the College. In June 2011 it became known that, following the closure of the College, the seven statues had been sold by Imperial College and were being advertised by a London dealer. If the statues were part of the listing (which took place in 1952) then they should not have been removed from their locations in the College without the permission of the Local Planning Authority, Ashford Borough Council (ABC).

As local people were concerned that the statues appeared to be irretrievably lost to the village,

Wye Parish Council asked ABC to investigate the position. After gathering information and seeking legal advice ABC, decided that the statues were not covered by the Grade-1 listing and that their removal was not a breach of listed-building control, as there was no firm evidence that the statues had been physically attached to the building at the time of listing in 1952. Furthermore, the statues had been moved around, and were deemed not to be part of the overall design of the Old Hall and of the corridor where they had been in place for much of the twentieth century.

Listed building law

The law relating to what may and may not be regarded as part of a listed building is notoriously complex and there are no easy answers. Contradictory opinions are often held as to whether a particular item is part of a listing or not. This was the case with regard to the statues. English Heritage, when approached by ABC, came to a different conclusion, but one that did not sway the Council's legal advisor. (English Heritage was of the opinion that, even though the statues were no longer part of the staircase, they were intended to contribute to the special interest of the listed medieval building rather than be enjoyed purely in their own right. English Heritage therefore concluded that the statues were covered by the listing.)

The legal debate was considerably more complicated than the above summary indicates, and while ABC's decision was disappointing in the eyes of those keen to see the statues given additional protection as part of the Grade-1-listed building, the debate highlighted the importance of the statues. In a letter to Wye Parish Council ABC asserted that, 'There is no doubt as to the historic value of the statues and they deserve to be displayed in their original home'. In the event,

Imperial College re-purchased the statues. The exhibition on 6 July 2012 celebrated their return, and in December 2013, the six statues were put back in the Minstrels' Gallery in the Old Hall. The seventh statue was placed in the Latin School building where it can be viewed when Wye Heritage Centre is open.

Current research findings

As far as is known, Dr Prosser's examination of the statues during the exhibition in July 2012 was only the second time in their history that they have been the subject of specialist expert attention. (In 1946 the statues had been photographed and a set of prints sent to the Keeper of the Department of Architecture and Sculpture at the Victoria and Albert Museum who concluded that the statues appeared English in origin, and that there was no reason why they should not be contemporary with the staircase.) Dr Prosser was able to give a much more comprehensive appraisal of the staircase and his interpretation of the statues was far removed from that of 'Ancient Britons'.

Wye staircase is unusual

According to Dr Prosser, seventeenth-century staircases are usually of massive construction. They demonstrate a huge variety of styles and types and not all have finials. The Wye staircase is unusual in having had newel finials depicting figures that are exceptional because of their size. The statues are said to be made of chestnut and their similarity of style suggests that they were all carved in the same workshop and are probably Flemish, although they may have been carved in England under Flemish influence. The staircase, however, is probably oak and this indicates that the figures were commissioned separately and that the staircase [as a whole] was constructed by a collaboration of different craftsmen – carpenters, joiners, turners and carvers.

Dr Prosser suggests that the tall male figure (see page 8, right hand statue) stood on a half- or wall-newel (which no longer exists) on the first landing of the staircase. He identifies this figure as Hercules, explaining that he is easily recognised by his 'rugged, bearded nakedness and his loin cloth, which is the Nemean Lion, together with his stance, which is commonly seen. He probably once leaned on a cudgel in his right hand, but this is now absent, though the hand appears to grip this missing attribute.' Dr Prosser also suggests that the other male figure, with its martial aspect, may be one of the Nine Worthies<sup>1</sup>.

Such classical allegorical figures are identified by their 'attributes' – articles they possess. The female figures share many characteristics, but they have lost arms and so have been parted from their attributes. However, one figure appears to be pouring from a jug into a cup and thus possesses the classical attributes of Temperance, one of the Four Cardinal Virtues<sup>2</sup>. A second figure can be tentatively identified from the Beard watercolour as possibly representing Fortitude. If this is so, then the other figures may represent survivors of a cycle of the Four Cardinal or Seven Theological Virtues<sup>3</sup>. However, C.E. Keyser in his book A list of buildings in Great Britain and Ireland having mural and other decorations, published in 1883, claims that Charity and two other Virtues were painted on the walls surrounding the staircase in Wye. The five female figures that remain may, therefore, belong to more than one allegorical cycle.

According to Dr Prosser there are three other staircases in England that are known to support figures of the Virtues which are also depicted in tapestries, plasterwork ceilings, hall screens and overmantles in many Jacobean houses. The source of inspiration for such depictions is Continental and many derive from sixteenth-century prints<sup>4</sup>. However, these prints are now very rare so that finding those that provided inspiration for the Wye statues would be a difficult though, given time, a not impossible task. Only then could the missing arms and attributes of the statues be reconstructed.

One of the most important early C17th staircases in Kent

In conclusion, Dr Prosser states categorically that 'There is little doubt that the staircase at Wye is one of the more important of Kent's early seventeenth-century staircases'. Moreover, Keyser was not alone in asserting (in his book of 1883) that there were paintings on the walls round the staircase. Over forty years earlier W. S. Morris had written about the staircase, 'It may be seen that on the wall by the stairs, a balustrade and figures were painted, in imitation of the wood-work'. It is interesting that the detail painted on the wall of the first landing in the Baird watercolour of c.1889 agrees with Morris's description.

Part of a colourful scheme

It therefore seems that there were paintings on the walls round the staircase and, if the staircase itself was once decoratively painted, then the statues would have been part of a colourful scheme. This possibility immediately calls to mind the best-known staircase in Kent, at Knole, which is one of the finest Jacobean staircases in the country: its structure is painted in imitation of expensive stone and marble. Associated with it are decorative wall panels (alluding to the Virtues conquering Vices), and a decorative plaster ceiling. Such comprehensive painted schemes are extremely rare and should the staircase at Wye prove to have had painted decoration and/or associated wall paintings, it could turn out to be one of the more important survivors of its type in England.

With this in mind, the group of local enthusiasts who arranged Dr Prosser's visit to Wye engaged the services of another expert, Catherine Hassall, to undertake a paint survey (again by kind permission of Imperial College) to try and establish whether any of the painted decoration survives. A meticulous examination of samples collected from the staircase, the statues and from various parts of the walls led to a number of conclusions.

Most significant is that the staircase was indeed once brightly painted, using materials that were of high quality for the period. This decoration was the original finish but, unfortunately, the staircase had been stripped, almost certainly in the nineteenth century, and coated with dark brown paint, which itself was later removed. Since then the staircase had twice been coated with black varnish. As a result, most of the original paint on the staircase has disappeared, but in some areas on a number of the mouldings small patches have survived as fragments of various colours.

A paint restorer investigates

Ms Hassall suggested that a paint restorer might be able to provide more information as to the position of the colours, if some additional tests were undertaken. So, in December 2013, Andrea Kirkham, an expert paint restorer, was engaged to examine the staircase, again with permission from Imperial College. She identified further evidence of decorative paintwork and found two types of probable marbling.

With regard to the statues, Ms Hassall concluded that the painted decoration that we see today is the original finish. The paint layers are typical of seventeenth-century technique and the pigments are all ones commonly used at that time.

Statues always part of the staircase

Always By comparing the paint samples from the staircase with those from the statues, Ms Hassall was able to show that the statues have always been part of the staircase and were in situ when the staircase was first painted. The same distinctive ground [base coat] was used for the staircase and for five of the statues. Secondly, the same crimson and green glazes were used for both the statues and the staircase. Thirdly, a sample taken from the foot of the (smaller) male statue wearing armour showed that the same distinctive black paint used for the newel posts can be seen under the red paint used for his sandal. This indicates that the paint from the staircase overlapped onto the statue before the statue was finally painted. While the statues were never stripped of their colour they were at some point varnished (probably in the nineteenth century).

Fundraising for the research

A Wye village fundraising event was held on February 22 to raise money to support the research into the Jacobean statues. Organised by Sally Leaver, the Quiz night made a profit of over £1000. For a full report see page 45.

Finally and disappointingly, nothing was found on the walls except nineteenth and twentieth-century paints. This means that the references by Morris and Keyser to wall paintings have not yet been corroborated.

Nevertheless, the overall outcome of the paint surveys is exciting. According to Dr Prosser the fact that the staircase at Wye was once brightly coloured puts it on a par with the great staircase at Knole. It can only be hoped that, sometime in the future, the Wye staircase, with its associated statues, will receive the recognition that it deserves.

Wye Quiz Night

In aid of costs for specialist art research on the Jacobean Staircase

A full account of the Jacobean Statues and Staircase at the College and their historic and architectural importance is given in the article entitled 'Wye's Jacobean Statues' on page 38. As stated in that article, Dr Lee Prosser, a Curator with the Royal Historic Palaces, wrote a report about the Staircase, (which is now painted black), believing it to have originally been brightly coloured, and if so to be of national importance.

To research his hypothesis, two paint experts in the analysis of historic paintwork were commissioned by a small group of us, with Imperial College's consent, to analyse any original paint found beneath the black paint on the staircase. The paint analysis did identify patches of original 17 century colouring; following these revelations a further research round took place to identify the ordering of these colours. Research on the patterning is ongoing; once completed, it is hoped that a local photo-wizardry expert will be able to re-create an image of the Staircase, with Statues in situ, as it was in the early quarter of the 17th century. The village independent website www.wyeweb.org holds archive copies of Dr. Prosser's report and those of the paint experts.

Funding for the first round of the research was met by donations from Village Societies and individuals. To help to cover the current and future research/photographic costs, a fund-raising quiz was held in the Village on 22nd February 2014. The response to the quiz was a clear indication of how much Wye residents and those associated with the College treasure the Jacobean Statues, which have now become emblematic within the Community.

A packed village hall, where supporters enjoyed the quiz and some other 'games'.

The Parish Council, Wye Web and Wye Business Association, publicised the quiz and Tickyboo sold the tickets. In total, there were 17 teams (136 participants) who entered the quiz, all with Wye connections. These included: The Wye Bell Ringers, Wye WI, Wye Arts Assoc., Wye Old Boys 1961 (Tim Derouet's team), Wye Church Choir, Wye Tennis Club, Wye New Flying Horse, Wye Parish Council, Wigs and Gowns (Mark Skilbeck's team) and Ripple Farm Organics (two teams). The quiz was won by the Crundale Slurpers, headed by the former College deputy finance manager; joint second were Wye Bell Ringers and Wye Tennis Club. Alan Paterson was quizmaster and Profs. Allan Buckwell and David Leaver were markers/scorers. Catering and support were provided by Val Paterson, Liz Dudley, Gill Bond, Jenny Oram and Sally Leaver. After all costs, the Quiz made £1,020 towards the cost of current and future research into the Staircase and Statues

Anaerobic digestion

The 1.4MW anaerobic digester at Symonds Farm Power was the venue for the 2013 Agricola Club's reunion lunch in Risby, near Bury St Edmunds in Suffolk. The anaerobic digester runs on 25,000t of maize silage and waste from the nearby pig unit. The plant is operated by Material Change Ltd, a company run by our previous chairman Charles Course (1983–84).

Construction of Material Change's (MCL) first joint venture anaerobic digestion plant at Symonds Farm in Suffolk was completed in January 2012 (on time and on budget) and is now producing electricity to the grid as well as private wire sales to the adjoining briquetting plant and piggery. Full output was reached in March 2012.

The plant has a design output of 1.4MW based on 25,000 tonnes of grown crops, but also has planning permission to take other non-animal by-products farm waste.

The site is permitted by a full Waste Management License to process grown crops and a range of other waste feedstocks. The landowner is contracted to supply maize and other forage crops such as rye to the site and to ensile these in the silage clamps constructed as part of the development. The crops are grown in rotation at the farm and, in addition to the long-term benefit to the land in digestate application (the output from the plant), the use of maize and hybrid rye as a break crop allows the farm to control weeds such as blackgrass.

Electricity generation

Electricity is sold via private wire installations to the adjoining wood briquetting plant and the adjoining pig farm as well as to all the commercial tenants on the Symonds Farm Business Park. The Park is 1km from the plant and SFP have installed an 11,000 volt private wire connection to transit power to the businesses there. The aim is to sell more private wire electricity offering tenants green power at the same retail price as they can buy black electricity generated from fossil fuels. Planning permission has been granted to build 2ha of glasshouses adjacent to the plant. SFP will sell heat and CO<sub>2</sub> to the flower grower operating these glasshouses as well as more private wire electricity.

The AD site is now producing enough electricity for around 3000 homes.

Anaerobic digestion

Anaerobic Digestion (AD) is a naturally occurring process that takes place within an enclosed vessel. It involves micro-organisms breaking down organic material without oxygen at temperatures up to 60°C. Carbon dioxide and methane gas are released during the process, known as a 'biogas'. The biogas can be burnt in a gas engine to produce electricity, which can be exported to the national grid. Any power exported to the grid qualifies for Renewables Obligation Certificates (ROCs) or Feed-In Tariffs (FITs). Alternatively the biogas can be cleaned, to remove the CO<sub>2</sub> and other impurities, and then injected into the National gas grid. This gas is eligible for Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) payments

AD plants can treat food and agricultural waste as well as energy crops. Both liquid and solid residues are produced at the end of the process and these can be used as fertilisers and for soil conditioning, returning organic material to the land.

Waste feedstocks. Biodegradable waste (waste which can be broken down biologically) can be diverted from landfill and used as a feedstock for the process. Suitable waste includes fruit, vegetables and some food processing factory outputs; animal wastes such as poultry muck can be used to add additional nutrients. Approximately 50% of the feedstock will be from waste.

Digester. The feedstock is fed into the digester for 10 minutes every hour. The digester works like a cow's stomach, breaking down the feedstock and generating methane; the bacteria are the same strains and need the same warm environment. Daily monitoring (including 24 hour remote monitoring) ensures that the 'concrete cow' remains healthy and stable while paddles stir the digestate to keep the mix consistent in the fully sealed digester.

Secondary digester. The output from the digester is pumped to the secondary digester to ensure that all the energy is extracted from the feedstock. The whole digestion process takes approximately 75 days. The digested output is taken to a screw press that separates the solid and liquid fractions.

Liquid storage. A further tank is used for liquid storage. This will hold the winter output of liquids until farmers need the liquid and nutrients contained in the output for use on their crops.

Grown crops. High yielding energy crops are grown in rotation and delivered to the site. Crops such as maize and rye have different harvesting patterns from cereal crops and so provide farmers with an opportunity to control invasive weeds and protect long-term wheat yields. The harvested crops are ensiled on site and fed into the feedhopper every day. Grown crops will provide the remaining 50% of feedstocks.

Gas clean up. The gas from the digestion process contains methane and CO<sub>2</sub>. The latter is removed by a series of membranes. Additives are mixed with the methane to ensure that it burns at the right temperature for domestic use and to add some odour to the gas.

Gas to grid. The treated gas is fed into the national gas grid for local use. Our biogas replaces fossil based gases which are not renewable. The gas grid connection will be via underground pipe to a connection near to the existing network.

Dry digestate. The dry digestate is stored and then taken to land for spreading where it is handled similarly to farmyard manures. It has a high nutrient content and can replace many of the artificial fertilisers that are currently used. The organic matter in the digestate helps the soil to retain moisture and make the soil more workable, in effect this provides arable farmers with the benefit of mixed farms with organic manures and replaces the organic matter which has been stripped out of the soils over many years of intensive farming.

Rustics' Cricket Tour 2013 – the heat is on, and can we improve on last year?

Report by Dickon Turner (1982 – 85)

Kilmington 7th July 2013

For those Rustics who were touring (or at least born) 30 years ago, 2013 was viewed as a welcome return to the clear blue skies and hard fast wickets that typified the tours of the mid 80's. Even the massed ranks of motorway cones failed to keep the Rustics from invading the tranquillity of East Devon as 15 fit tourists arrived at Kilmington for what was believed to be the 50th fixture between the two sides. The warm sunshine wasn't all good news as Peter Holborn immediately stripped off and was convicted of indecent over-exposure on the field of play.

After just 2 overs, the Rustics had reached a staggering 36 for 0, thanks to Martin Hole's savage treatment of the Kilmington's strike bowlers. In the third over, his opening partner (Robert Pinney) was dismissed for a second ball duck, but Simon Richardson joined in the happy slapping as the Rustic's 50 was brought up in the 4th over. We are told that lightning never strikes twice, but the same cannot be said for the electrifying Hole who, in a mirror image of a 2006 incident, smashed a straight six through the patio doors of an elderly lady's bungalow at long on. While the shocked occupant was comforted, she advised how her double glazed units should have been replaced two days beforehand, but engine failure in the delivery lorry had resulted in the installation being delayed until the following Monday.

Veteran spinner David Lavender was introduced and brought a freshness to the wilting Kilmington attack. After accounting for Richardson, Lavender could scent blood and quickly added John Dinnis to his victims in a purple patch of 4 deliveries. When Hole holed out for a sparkling 90 (including 16 boundaries) a collapse was on the cards, but the ship-steadying stroke play from the strapping Nigel Snape and the returning Northern Grit (AKA Sam Irving) calmed the nerves. It was left for Charlie 'The Wand' Squire to spank a selection of sixes before Rustics declared on 244 for 7.

Hole smashing a six...

Cross breeding programme...

Some 20 years ago, Nigel Snape had the foresight to undertake a cross-breeding programme with a fresh gene pool of Antipodean origin. It was today that the Rustics benefitted from the hybrid vigour of the progeny as Hugo and Toby Snape were unleashed on the unsuspecting hosts. The Kilmington top order was blown away by searing pace and bounce, the game appeared over as they slumped to 39 for 4. However, the Snapes needed to be rested for tougher tasks ahead, and the fixture needed to be preserved, so John Dinnis was introduced to the attack. Such was the height achieved with his lob variations, that the batsmen had the opportunity to nip to the Old Inn for a beer and cigar before deciding whether to smack the ball for 4 or 6. But it was Northern Grit who stole the bowling show. Pretending to be struggling for rhythm, he drew the increasingly confident batsmen into a false sense of security, so that when he eventually pitched the ball on the wicket, they had no answer. The two set batsmen were dismissed with consecutive deliveries. The hat-trick ball was high and wide and smashed to the boundary and NG was retired from the attack with 2 for 13 from the 11 deliveries of his one over.

Kilmington had recovered well and at 217 for 8 were pushing for an unlikely victory until the Snape brothers were brought back to snaffle the last flames of hope and ensure the hosts fell 20 runs short of their target. Was it the sun, or was it pride that had turned their fathers face from Modest Magenta to Papasnapper Pink ?

Devon Dumplings 8th July 2013

In the cauldron of the Exeter Oval, the winning of the toss was likely to be crucial so skipper Peter Wain had been practising the call for much of a sleepless night. It proved to be in vain as the useless tosser watched the coin fall on the wrong side and Rustics were sentenced to hours of hard labour, fielding in the midday sun. Snape senior's complexion rapidly turned to Frustrated Fuchsia, as his sons toiled in the heat, bowling with pace and heart but no success. The home side strode ominously to 70-0 after 12 overs. Fortunately, the Rustic breeding programme had encompassed many varietal strains, and when teenage off-spinner Richie Turner came into the attack, he immediately fizzed one back through the gate of the startled batsmen to halt the Dumpling march. From the other end, the even younger spin-twin, Robert 'Micro' Craze, was starting to hypnotise the batsmen with his leggings, flippers and googlies, grabbing a brace of wickets in the process. Toby Snape returned to snare another wicket and the lunchtime score of 144 for 4 was reasonably digestible.

Snape senior was late back to the field after lunch, having applied lashings of sun block to tone down his visage to a Sanguine Salmon. Meanwhile, Dumplings were riding their luck against the accurate spinners, pushing the score towards 200 before Craze stepped in with a double wicket maiden (and a double teapot when a LBW appeal was later turned down to deny him a five wicket haul). The bowling continued in disciplined fashion on a good batting track, and further wickets from Turner and Snape kept the scoring in check. The Dumpling's skipper was still confident enough to declare on 256 for 8.

The age difference between the Rustic batsmen, Simon Richardson and Micro Craze is nearly 45 years, but they showed complete parity in their mastery of the willow wielding art as they shared an opening partnership of 119. With classical technique, they calmly stroked the ball to all corners of the fast outfield, scampering between the wickets until the well-strapped body of Richardson was finally unravelled. Father (Andrew 'Mini' Craze) joined his son at the middle and took a more bludgeoning approach, smashing 38 at more than a run-a-ball as the Dumplings' skipper traded cocky confidence for confused concern. When Micro reversed swept his way to a chanceless century, his Dad was still at the crease to offer the first words of congratulations, along with a reminder that he was now old enough to buy his own jugs of ale.

Cavalier cameos from Hugo Snape, Squire and Richard Pool hammered the last few nails in the Dumplings coffin, but it was Micro Craze who was applauded from the field; his perfectly judged innings of 127 not out guiding Rustics to an emphatic 6 wicket victory. Perhaps the opposing skipper might have accepted that the tourists had one half-decent cricketer within their 2013 tour party.

During the final few overs, a delightful smell of roasting pork drifted across the ground ... Peter Grieg's barbecue had arrived in town. This also attracted hungry seagulls that dive-bombed anyone holding a bap and had to be repelled by various ground-to-air missiles.

Beaminster 9th July 2013

On another glorious summer's morning, Wain actually won the toss and an hour into the match, Rustics had passed 100 without the loss of a wicket. Wain himself was playing a captain's role, supporting young Toby Snape who was devouring the Beaminster bowling like a Labrador lurching on trifle. With a bewildering array of strokes, he reached a dominant century from just 98 deliveries, and was immediately congratulated by his godfather and batting partner, Martin Hole (right). Snape senior's complexion had turned to a Contented Cerise.

Hole himself looked set for another mighty score before predictably falling to the first lofted delivery of a 15 year old leg spinner, but the reliable Pool saw the Rustics to an early declaration with a succession of short arm slaps over the boundary.

Chasing 280 to win, the Beaminster batsmen set about the task with purpose, scoring 60 from the first 10 overs but losing wickets to Snape (Toby) and Craze (Micro) in the process. Richie Turner came into the attack and bowled his skilful off-spin with drift, bounce and bite, inducing a rash of careless strokes from the bewildered batsmen, and a plague of dropped catches from the Lurpak-laced digits of the fielders. At the other end, his father bowled with his customary lack of drift, bounce or bite, but demonstrated years of Rustic experience by dispensing with the need for fielders and bowling the occasional straight delivery which sneaked past the bat.

Beaminster continued scoring at a respectable rate and were still in the game until Dinnis delivered a couple of devastating donkey drops, and a catch was finally taken off the luckless Turner jnr. Pool stepped in with a sporting beamer at the No.11's helmet and the game was over with the hosts still 109 runs short. The Rustics celebrated in the traditional West Country way, by showering in scrumpy cider. Meanwhile Hole revealed that exposing his legs to the sun for the first time since 1983, had turned them to a Raw Rasher of Ruby (by reference to the Fifty Shades of Snape chart*).

While the tour may be shorter than in earlier years, the enthusiasm and cricketing ability appears as strong as ever, and the spirit of Wye lives on for a few days each year in this unlikely corner of Britain.

Scarcies Rivers revisited

50 years ago, almost to the day, a band of eight stout-hearted first and second second years set off into the unknown to conduct a survey on the development of rice growing in villages along the Scarcies Rivers in Sierra Leone. For some it was the start of a lifetime's work in Africa; for all, it was a never-to-be-forgotten experience. Following a short overview of the expedition by tour leader Jeremy Groom, each team member has provided a snapshot of how their lives unfolded in the years following.

Jeremy Groom (1962–65)

Since I have previously written about my Life after Wye in the 2010-11 edition of the Journal, my role here is to explain the origins and activities of the Scarcies Rivers

Expedition that went to Sierra Leone some 50 years ago, in 1964. Back in those halcyon days of the early '60s, every two years the College sponsored, with its name and some cash, an undergraduate group to go somewhere and do something during the long summer vacation. My tutor, Max Hooper, had been on the Joint Universities Expedition to Sierra Leone in 1961 and had briefly worked at the Rokupr Rice Research Station (now a branch of the Sierra Leone Agricultural Research Institute). He thought there would be opportunities for a group of undergraduates to 'do something there'.

I corresponded with the Director, a Dr H. D. Jordan, and he accepted the idea of a visit and suggested we investigate the development of the rice growing areas and the smallholder production problems.

Funding issues

I persuaded a group of seven friends to join me and submit a proposal. We were selected by the College and received a grant of £100 from the Governors and a loan for a similar amount from the Union – but, in total, we still needed an additional £1,800 – more than two years' salary for a young graduate in those times! We developed a hit list of funding foundations.

The most important potential funder was the Royal Geographical Society (RGS) because if you got their recognition you gained credibility in the eyes of all the others. Our proposal was accepted in principle by the RGS and I went for the interview. It was quite daunting! On arrival, I was directed to the back entrance of the RGS building and ushered into a side room and told to wait; the committee had not arrived back from lunch! Eventually, a kindly middle-aged lady took me up the back stairs to the library, and I felt like a defendant going into a court. Just as I went out she said 'Don't worry; it's only Lord Shackleton as chairman'.

Correspondence pays off

Well, our arguments succeeded – the two convincing throw-away lines that generated the grunts and the nods were that we had been in correspondence with the research institute since early 1963 and that 'the research station wanted something done'. We received the princely sum of £200 (second highest donation that year) plus an appropriate letter. On the basis of this backing we got financial support from United Africa Company, Ford Dagenham Trust, Bookers, Shell International Grants and, most importantly, the Ministry of Overseas Development.

Once we had the big fish hooked we turned our attention to the commercial companies for donations in kind. It was interesting how naïve and lacking in political correctness some of the suppliers were in those days. We got tins of rice pudding (having told everyone we were going to work at a rice research station) and boxes of cigarettes beautifully packed in tins of 50s. But we did also get really useful contributions e.g. biscuits, sweets, corned beef, emergency rations, tinned cheese and cereals. One of the best was a supplier of dehydrated meats who asked us to report on the shelf-life, taste, storage, etc.

The journey out

We crated all these goodies; we were jabbed with tetanus, cholera and typhoid and smallpox; and we even got insurance through Lloyds. Then, on the evening of 28th June 1964, we took the boat train from Liverpool Street Station to Harwich and then travelled as foot passengers on the SS Amsterdam to Hook of Holland and onward by train to Rotterdam to pick up our boat to West Africa; only to find that it had been delayed in Hamburg for three days.

We eventually sailed on the MV Otchi River, a Black Star Lines freighter out of Accra; about 11,500 tons and flat bottomed with its own derricks, only to spend another two days in Dunkirk loading sugar. But by 6th July we were all being sea-sick in the Bay of Biscay. On the night before we got into Freetown (17th July) the captain threw a party and at dawn with a hangover we went through the gap in the reef and anchored in the magnificent natural harbour. To us it was a story-book setting with the pretty town and docks nestling under the hills and the enormous and calm harbour with an assortment of ships at anchor. It was called the 'white man's grave' but it looked like heaven plus the smell of the tropical vegetation and the warmth – hot, sticky and all-enveloping.

Everyone in the city was so helpful: the customs and immigration provided visit permits and free entry for all our goods; the Ministry of Natural Resources loaned us vehicles, camping equipment, a driver and interpreter for free; and, we had cheap food and accommodation at Fourah Bay College.

We were even 'allowed' to drink at the City Hotel under the cotton tree in the middle of town!

The next adventure was driving to Rokupr on the graded laterite roads and crossing the Little Scarcies River by cable ferry at Mange. After a night at the research institute we moved 13km down a village track to a small compound where we were to stay! The rest-house had two rooms, each 4m x 4m plus a bathroom and there were separate huts for kitchen and the generator. Four camp beds just fitted into each room but one room had to be cleared each day so we had somewhere to sit and eat.

Our work

What did we actually do? On behalf of the research institute we worked in the villages and undertook mapping and farming surveys of households in selected villages, recorded the farming areas and activities of the local farming and cooperative institutions. We interviewed the chiefs, the village headmen and farmers about their farming problems and discussed the opportunities for development with the communities and government staff. In addition, we took soil samples to make a comparison of pH and soil texture between the swamp and highland areas; plus investigations of weeds and pests, particularly crabs. Apart from the LR and our own feet, we used canoes and motor boats to get around the communities. We seemed to spend a long time in the water and on the water. This led to lots of lesions on our feet and legs which soon became infected and eventually ulcerated!

Very different Europeans

Most importantly we played football and cricket in the villages! Also, as the Paramount Chief told us at the end of the visit: "You are very different from other Europeans who visit us!! When they visit us they sit about at the Chief's house, talk and drink tea. You also visit the chief but in addition go to the fields and talk about what is happening on our farms".

Scarcies Rivers Expedition 1964 - s

Some images of Africa 50 years ago

At the end of six weeks (2nd September) we paid our courtesy calls, sold our excess food, said our farewells and departed for Freetown. The staff at Fourah Bay College were yet again very kind and thoughtful. We repeated our farewell courtesy calls to ministries and returned the loaned items. We were interviewed for an article in the Freetown Daily Mail and this made the front page on our departure day. On the morning of 5th September, we boarded the RMMV Aureol of Elder Dempster Lines, and entertained our driver, now a good friend, to breakfast. We made our sad farewells and sailed with heavy hearts and many strong feelings about our first experience of the tropics. Five of us were to do this many times in the future, but the first time will always stay strongest in our memories.

Travelling home

We travelled home 3rd or maybe 4th class – right down in the bottom of the boat, below the waterline and with no portholes; you could hear the water gurgling along the side of the boat at night!! The bar at the back end of the ship was small but just fitted eight bodies; the restaurant was more of a refectory with trestle tables and benches. Never mind; the first day on board felt like a luxury cruise: we were served a full breakfast followed by ice-cream and coffee at 11.00am, an appetizer in the bar before lunch at 1.00pm, tea at 4.00pm (after a little sun-bathe), drinks at 6.30pm and then dinner!!

On 13th September the pilot came on board at the entrance to the Mersey and the following morning we docked in Liverpool right underneath the Royal Liver Building. Strangely, our freight easily passed through customs – even though we had soil samples and plant material, the comment by the customs officer as I tried to think of the best argument was “That will be OK; I’m sure it’s only going to a university laboratory”.

The report

The report was eventually published in March 1965

– following lots of advice from the Principal about format, and editorial support from the Vice Principal. We held our breaths as the report was distributed; the replies were either just an acknowledgement or amazing. Two that were extremely satisfying were from the RGS and Rokupr:

From L. P. Kirwan CMG,
Director and Secretary, RGS:

Dear Mr Groome.....Thank you so much for your report of the Scarcies Rivers Expedition 1964. This is an excellent piece of work which we are very glad to have, not least because it will be very helpful to future expeditions to the same area. All congratulations on it.

From Dr H D Jordan, Director,
Rokupr Rice Research Station:

Dear Mr Groome..... We read the report with great interest and we think that in the time you were here you have done a very good piece of work and that the information you collected will be very useful.....Your report is in the library and is going to come in useful in the development programmes we plan.

The rest of the gang

Douglas Clark (1963–66)

After I left Wye I worked for a large German truck manufacturer and travelled the length and breadth of the UK as well as sorties into Europe. In 1966, I forsook this lucrative and interesting job to join Chris Warn, David Gore and Mike Blandy on the ‘Wye Trans African Expedition’ travelling overland to Kenya and subsequently working for Louis Leakey for a time at one of his primate research stations.

Douglas Clark on duty in a disaster area.

University in New Zealand

This experience stimulated me to develop my career in 'the wildlife area' and I decided to go back to university in New Zealand where I had family links. But for this I needed money, so I worked at a grain silo in Oxfordshire and as a tourist guide in London for a year. I eventually attended the University of Otago in Dunedin, majored in Zoology with subsidiary subjects of Psychology and Geography which, with a fourth year, earned me an Honours. Then I planned my return to Africa but as a penniless student I was forced to take a teaching job for a year; as the only male teacher in a girls' Catholic secondary school teaching biology – very interesting and therein lie some stories!

My major interest at the time was car rallying (I've always been a bit of a 'petrol head'; presently three cars and four motorcycles in the garage). I built my own Mk 1 Ford Lotus Escort and was reasonably successful on the national rally scene here in New Zealand. Also did a fair bit of scuba diving and founded the University Underwater Club, acting as their chief instructor.

Life as a petrol head

While teaching I met my wife, Juliet, and got married, which threw my 'selfish' plans of Africa into disarray and, with a baby, Abigail, on the way, I stayed teaching. New Zealand at that time was pretty dismal for a struggling young couple so we 'eyed up' prospects 'across the ditch' (that's Australia to the non-Antipodeans). I got a job as Senior Lecturer in the Animal Production Department at Longerenong Agricultural College in remote north eastern Victoria. We had a great time there, the campus was like a small village and very sociable. Our son, Sam and second daughter, Prue, were born there.

We stayed in Australia 10 years (and God forbid, almost became Aussies!) but for family reasons decided to return to Dunedin. I went back to secondary teaching and became a senior staff member of a boys' secondary school which I progressively grew to dislike. Then one day I saw on TV a guy sitting on a rock in Afghanistan talking of his work with the International Red Cross. A 'light-bulb lit up in my head'...this could be my escape! So after 20 odd years of teaching/lecturing, I trained as an 'International Delegate' and started the only job which almost 'ticked all the boxes' as far as an ideal job for me goes.

My ideal job

So for the last 15 years I have been an International Disaster Response Coordinator for the Red Cross. This means essentially being on call to respond, within a couple of hours, to natural disasters. This usually involves assessing the situation and then deciding on the needs – personnel, finance and materials. An 'appeal' document is prepared which goes to all the other Red Cross societies and big international donors who then, hopefully, supply those needs. As these arrive in country the coordination of these factors involves 'challenging' meetings interspersed with difficult field work. Kiwis (which I suppose I am now) are reputed to be the best aid workers in the world – they just, 'get on with it' and can 'fix anything'.

Chaos and devastation

The main geographical areas I cover are the Pacific and Asia although I have had missions to Africa; Sudan, Kenya and Ethiopia. For some time I was based in Kuala Lumpur, central to the world's epicentre of disasters and population. So a lot of travel to remote, chaotic and devastated areas and 18 hour stressful days once there! It is also a job of extremes; from the utter unfathomable chaos and devastation following the Indian Ocean Boxing Day tsunami in Sri Lanka to the acute remoteness of a tiny island of only 400 people, Pukupuku, literally in the middle of the vast Pacific Ocean with no airstrip or port.

Between disaster response missions I have been designing and delivering courses in disaster management for developing countries. I also established a consultancy in disaster response, management and training and have been contracted on and off by the UN and other agencies.

Busy retirement

Although sort of semi-retired (I still am on stand-by for emergency missions), I seem to keep myself fairly busy. Two days a week I volunteer as a 'dog's body' (excuse the pun) for the SPCA doing odd jobs and driving: one day a week I drive the local Red Cross Community transport van; I mark assignments for Lincoln University (agricultural subjects) to keep my brain alive and undertake a range of handyman assignments for inept or too busy home owners. With any remaining time I am rebuilding a 1970's Alfa Romeo race car. My children seem to think I don't understand the concept of relaxation!

George Goddard (1962–65)

In summer 1965 I saw an advert on the College notice board offering scholarships to study for a Diploma in Tropical Agriculture in Trinidad. I applied, went, and had a great year in the sun playing rugby to the sound of steel bands. After a successful year, I sailed back to the UK and returned to Wye as a postgraduate student to study for an M.Phil. in animal nutrition on the feeding of Feterita (a white hulled grain sorghum from Sudan). During these two years I made two wise decisions. The first was to marry, in 1967, Jill from Christchurch and secondly, on her advice, to buy into the housing market. Neither action has ever been regretted.

World record for food conversion

One result of my research was that one of the rations used in a broiler trial at Plumpton Agricultural College resulted in holding the world record for growth and food conversion at the time.

Moving abroad again in 1968 I went to lecture at the Veterinary Faculty at the University of Khartoum, initially for a year and then for a further two years. As part of the job I went with a group of students to the West of Sudan in my second summer there. When we left Khartoum the Government started to put down the Mardhist party, and my wife had no news of me for five weeks until I returned to the city. In 1971 we returned to the UK with Jill an expectant mother. I was offered a job in Northern Nigeria through ODA; but due to changes in the job description I turned it down.

So, to pay the bills I did some supply teaching at secondary schools in Kent. Jill gave birth to our first son and then I went to work as an education officer in a local prison. In 1972, I was supply teaching in Maidstone when I was inspected by an HMI one morning for 20 minutes and that afternoon the Head told me I was now a qualified teacher; much to my surprise. I then moved to Swadlands School in Lenham in 1972 and became Head of Rural Science in charge of their Farm Unit. Our second son was born that year.

Jordan brings an award

ODA recruited me in 1975 to go to Jordan to establish their Faculty of Agriculture poultry farm as a lecturer. Jill negotiated this into a three year contract, and this resulted in a very happy period of our lives which lasted through four changes of job description: two at the University funded by ODA and another two with the Jordanian Cooperative organisation, funded by the EEC. Whilst at the University I helped two graduates find Ph.D. places at Wye as well as other training positions in the UK for faculty staff with British Council funding. In 1983, I changed paymaster and job to work as an animal production advisor to the Jordanian Cooperative organisation on establishing a sheep breeding and fattening programme based on the local Awassi fat tailed breed. In June 1983 we went as a family to Buckingham Palace as I had been awarded an MBE for my work in Jordanian Agriculture; my sons' memory was meeting Daley Thompson, not me receiving a medal from the Queen. Jill kept herself busy teaching at the local American School, and progressed to establishing her own educational business, as well as teaching riding to the Royal Family. This led to interesting days meeting with them socially.

Kitchen feeding station

The initial sheep breeding and fattening proposals were accepted and the project funding agreed with the EEC and EIB. These were based on the establishment of an Awassi breeding farm and five fattening and feed distribution centres. After a range of trials and tribulations these were all established and ready to go in 1989 as my contract ended. This was at the time of Saddam's invasion of Kuwait and the resulting problems. We ended up with a once-a-week feeding station from our kitchen organised by our maid. I then undertook a commercial feasibility study for a Nigerian group who had tried to establish two projects near Kano. These were in a real mess and needed major funding if operations were to be recommended. I was surprised to be paid in full despite the shortcomings on the two sites.

Life in Kew

On return to UK to live in our house in Kew for the first time since purchase in 1983, we had a major family review associated with a lack of job offers. The end result was that I returned to teaching Sciences at a state secondary school in Ham; and Jill went back to teaching in Richmond. By this time the boys were going their own ways. The eldest, Peter, went to Bangor to study marine biology, graduated and then ended up in Australia in financial recruitment. Our second son, Andrew, studied hotel management and catering; and has had a wide range of jobs, ending up running a conference centre near the Millbank Tower.

In 1998, with encouragement from Jill, I joined the Rotary Club of Kew Gardens. Their activities have given me many opportunities to get involved in projects and fund raising activities. My special joy is white beard and red coat wearing in December. I was awarded a Paul Harris Fellowship in token of my participation as a Rotarian in development projects.

In 2002, due to increasing health problems arising from stress and type 2 diabetes I retired from teaching and have been kept in great style by my wife. We have spent many happy times on travels around the world; due in part to my love of safari-based holidays.

Mike Henson (1964 – 66)

Written by Mike's widow, Nichola

On leaving Wye, Mike went to Uganda in August 1966 on a UK-funded government scheme, Study and Serve. Here he studied for an MSc, whilst lecturing to earn his keep, at Makerere University in Kampala.

The late Mike Henson with daughters Sarah-Louise and baby twins Amanda & Tanya.

The contract stated that he was not to be married on arrival, so I delayed my arrival until December and we married outside Nairobi, Kenya. The boys from the Wye Trans African Expedition were planning to attend our wedding, held at the home of another Wye graduate, Jeremy Selby, but there were delays on the overland journey and they didn't make it.

Fertilisers in Kenya

Having gained his MSc, Mike joined Windmill Fertilizers East Africa as their Technical Manager where he advised farmers and international commercial estates on pesticides and fertilizers, covering the three East African countries, plus The Congo and Rwanda.

We moved to Eldoret in Kenya for two years, then to Nairobi for seven. During these years, the longest time we ever spent in one house, we had three daughters, all of whom are now married, with six children between them, and living in UK. Mike did a lot of car rallying; in those days the wives bundled the babies and a tool box into the family car and set off as service crew. He became quite successful and was sponsored by Mazda.

Back to UK

When Windmill was taken over by a local company Mike decided that, before he was 40 and left 'on the shelf', he ought to get into employment in England. So in 1977 he transferred to Windmill Fertilizers UK which was based in Southend-on-Sea! Needless to say, we lasted only 18 months before Africa called again.

This was the start of the next stage of Mike's life, running agricultural projects in various African countries. In 1979 he returned to Sierra Leone on a project setting up a trading company for small-scale farmers. In 1983 he was Project Co-ordinator of the EC-funded Coffee Rehabilitation Programme in Uganda, heading a 14-man team based in Entebbe. Bill Mitchell (our UK head office contact) wrote "... where his dynamic leadership was a major factor in the successful implementation of the project under very difficult conditions". Here Mike took up sailing and was a major instigator in reviving the Entebbe Sailing Club.

Coup d'états and other adventures

We managed to keep safe during many coup

d'états, and the stories of our adventures are endless. One memorable occasion, broadcast over our network of walkie talkie radios, was the time that the British High Commissioner called Mike from Kampala and asked him to 'take to the boats' and lead a convoy of ex-pats to safety across Lake Victoria to Kisumu! The situation in Uganda became very unstable, and Bill Mitchell was kept busy relaying messages from Mike regarding members of the team, some of whom were far away from any towns, to all their families in England.

In 1986 Mike returned to Sierra Leone as Senior Management Advisor to the World Bank/IFAD. Amongst the various Aid workers, Senior World Bank personnel, oil/fuel managers who were 'doing the rounds' of African countries, the message was, "don't go where the Hensons go – there will be a coup!" We went through five coups together!

Return to Sierra Leone

In 1988 he moved to Zambia as Project Co-ordinator of the IFAD-funded Smallholder Services Rehabilitation Project, then in 1992 back to Uganda where he was Managing Director of a trading and engineering company. This was followed by a spell as Business Manager of a large agricultural estate in Kenya.

In 1993 he returned to Sierra Leone as Project Manager of an EC-funded food company, based up-country in Bo, followed by a post as Programme Co-ordinator of an EC Structural Adjustment Support Project, and still in Sierra Leone, now in Freetown, as EC-funded Economic Advisor to the Ministry of Finance. Sierra Leone has quite a hold on our family and our eldest daughter did six months voluntary work in a small village near Njala in 1989, returning for a sabbatical in 2007.

A close escape

In May 1997 Mike was alone in our house in Freetown, when rebels shot their way through the locks of the doors and put a gun to his head, demanding money and electrical goods. Mike managed to get out, with a huge Samsonite suitcase, with just four possessions he managed to grab, rattling about in it. After a few days in a safe house, the British High Commission evacuated him with other ex-pats back to UK. However it was clear to us that he was unwell and, after several months of investigation, he was diagnosed with an aggressive brain tumour. In September that year he died peacefully in hospital in Sherborne.

Paddy Johnson (1962–65)

So where do we start? As I was the only person in the group who set up the expedition who had any knowledge of geology I was the obvious person to be the soil specialist.

Simple, 'uplands, sandy floodplains, silty', end of survey.

Leaving Wye I was lucky to be recruited by the Soil Survey and worked in the East Midlands where, whilst helping to do the survey of the Melton Mowbray district, I discovered the delights of bread and Stilton cheese for lunch. Sandwiching a MSc course at Reading between surveying soils in the White Peak (a report which was apparently the first ever to sell out, not because it was brilliant, but mainly because of the local universities used it for field courses) and an area around Newark,

Last to join NAAS

I changed direction by being the last person to join NAAS before it became ADAS as a soil scientist at Wye. My office had a dead rat in the heating system, but despite this I learnt about fruit nutrition, and working with Wye College we grew Navy Beans and canned them as Cardinal Brand baked beans.

Whilst at Wye I developed a soil examination and management course for ADAS advisors, which ran for 22 years, and this followed me around. I guess this was the start of my enjoyment of training and I later became a member of the FACTS (Fertiliser Advisors Certification and Training Scheme) committee and ran courses for ADAS colleagues and others. My association with BASIS continued after I had retired from ADAS as I helped them to develop their Soil and Water Management qualification.

Moving around with ADAS

I moved on with a return to the East Midlands at Shardlow. No fruit (apart from one farm where I advised on the fertiliser needs of the original Bramley apple tree) and no veg, but this strange crop Sugar Beet. Eight years later 'we are closing your office – you can go to Aberystwyth or Kirton in Lincolnshire' (every office I worked at has been closed; working practices change and when Kirton was shut I spent several years working from home which meant I got the dinner I wanted every night as I cooked it). Despite being the 'shop steward' I had to go. So in April 1986 we came to Lincolnshire – home of the smell of rotting brassica waste. I now became much more involved with vegetables, in particular taking part in the revolution in brassica planting – from bare root to module plants – which dramatically improved establishment.

Papers and articles

ADAS changed dramatically over the years, not least when it was privatised in the mid '90s and as science specialists we were encouraged to do more research rather than development as that was where funding was available. So research was done and papers published on the nutrition of potatoes, nitrate loss from soils and various other things.

I am probably one of the few soil scientists to have had a paper published in the Farm Management Journal. Some of the papers were refereed and I refereed others. I have forgotten how many popular articles I wrote for Crops, Arable Farmer etc but I do remember how ADAS's attitude to broadcasts changed – in the '70s there had to be no extraneous noise and the local boss had to approve a typescript before it could be broadcast; in the '90s it was just "sure Alan, where shall I meet you?" I remember one where, just north of Lincoln, we looked out over the Trent valley power stations and I said "when that lot get cleaned up our farmers will have to pay for sulphur"

Nitrates and the control of diffuse pollution became a major part of my work, not just the experimental side but also helping MAFF and DEFRA with monitoring and developing policy on Nitrate Sensitive Areas and Nitrate Vulnerable Zones. Talks and demonstrations were legion and continued after my retirement from ADAS, helped by being a committee member of the Soil Management Initiative. Soil2Crop, Catchment Sensitive Farming, BPC demos and publications are just a few that come to mind.

Portugal to Poland

Not all my work was in the UK. In the late '60s I did some soil survey work in Portugal which paid for my wife's engagement and wedding rings. Fifty years later Portugal has really changed with EU funding. When I was first there the Algarve was still peaceful with few hotels and only the odd golf course being developed. Through briefing the new Slovakian government on EU nitrate policy I got involved with EU projects on 'Water and Nitrogen in Potato Production' and 'Poplars: a Multi Use Crop for European Farmers'. These projects took me on a tour of Europe from Portugal to Poland. Just after my official retirement I was recruited by the EA and UEA to assist with the Water4All project.

Soil science honour

At the first farmer meeting in the UK study area a prominent local farmer said 'Good to see you here Paddy, we know they have someone who knows what they are talking about'. But my greatest compliment came when I received a letter in September 2007 telling me that I had been elected an Honorary Member of the British Society of Soil Science, the citation reading 'for the outstanding contribution you have made to the field over many years.'

No doubt I have missed lots of things out and after I send this off I will remember them. Apart from some of the bureaucracy it was an enjoyable career. (Just thought of my role as technical editor of RB209, the fertiliser advisers' 'bible' in the UK.) But when a callow youth comes up to you at a meeting and says 'Granddad sends his regards' you know it is time to quit.

Away from work I got married and was persuaded to have two children who have long left the nest. Having played football and cricket at college I gave up the former and changed to hockey, making the Derbyshire county squad as reserve goalkeeper. In those days the only protection was pads and a box, no wonder I eventually lost my nerve! Carried on playing cricket and became the first person to score a century at Kegworth in the North Leicestershire league for over 30 years. Even in the '60s we were playing 20 over games in an evening league – took a long time for this to catch on! Played some tennis and squash, and a few years ago started playing golf badly.

A real 'pillcock' of society

I was a parish councillor in Derbyshire and I been one for several years in my Lincolnshire village where I also edit, print and do the initial distribution of the village newsletter; I am a local Neighbourhood Watch co-ordinator, a Best Kept Village judge – in fact a real 'pillcock of society'!

Chris Lonsdale (1962–65)

As I reflect on the past 50 years I am not short of memories but they do not necessarily come to mind in the right chronological order. Perhaps this is, in part at least, the result of several changes of direction and adjustment to new situations.

Grassland at Hurley

At the end of my time at Wye I had the offer of studying for a higher degree at Guelph but I failed to exploit this opportunity as a pass degree meant I was unable to take the place. This jolt to the system came rather late in the year for securing alternative employment, but fortunately in November of that year I was offered and took up the post of Experimental Officer at the Grassland Research Institute in Hurley, Berkshire. As a member of the Animal Production Department I was engaged in the examination of factors affecting the growth, development and productivity of cattle reared on forage and forage-based diets.

Leading the way

It was an interesting time, not only for significant advances in systems of forage utilization but also for the development of techniques allowing better understanding of what was happening in the animal, particularly in respect of protein nutrition of the ruminant. The work conducted at Hurley at this time made a valuable contribution to the creation of the metabolisable protein system, which is now widely used in the formulation and evaluation of diets for ruminants.

Swaziland

Hurley had close ties with the University of Reading and in 1973 I visited Swaziland under the auspices of the Inter Universities Exchange to lecture on animal production and to contribute to discussions on the course content for the pending upgrade of the country's agricultural college to university status. During this visit I met briefly with a fellow member of the Scarcies Rivers Expedition, Chris Warne, who was then working for the CDC in the sugar plantations of Swaziland.

I prepared some of my work at Hurley as a thesis in support of being awarded a Ph.D. by the University of Reading in 1976.

The upside of not being able to go to Canada was that I continued my friendship with Sue whom I met whilst I was at Wye and she was at Christ Church College, Canterbury. We were married in April 1969 and settled near Henley on Thames where our sons were born.

Animal nutrition

In 1976, mindful of the Government of the day's withdrawal of financial support for near market research in agriculture, I sought a change of employment and secured the newly created post of nutritionist to the Kenneth Wilson Group, a Leeds-based agricultural merchant with operating companies from Andover to Fraserburgh. My role was to engage in identifying by-products of food processing, evaluate them as feedstuffs for farm animals and examining the most effective methods of making them available for use.

A particularly rewarding side to this activity was its practical development. It was a time when complete diet feeders became available in the UK, which allowed the effective use of diverse feed ingredients on farm and it was stimulating to be a part of the development of this approach to feeding farm animals.

We built KW into the leading specialist in the supply of feed ingredients to livestock farmers. We coined the term 'alternative feeds' and supported our customers with specific on-farm guidance and advice epitomised by the production of Alternative Feeds – A guide for User and Adviser for which I was largely responsible.

I drew together my knowledge and philosophy of feeds and feeding into a concise guide to the composition, nutritive value and use of a wide range of the raw material animal feeds available in the UK. Straights: Raw Materials for Animal Feed Compounders and Farmers was published in February 1989.

Pastures new

In 1987 I joined the Federation of Agricultural Co-operatives (FAC) as their Supply Trades Executive - another change of direction and further pastures new. I was now part of an organisation created to deal with matters of common interest to its members, including: amendments to the law affecting co-operatives; education and training of staff; relations between co-operatives and marketing boards; collecting statistics; trade between co-operatives in the various EU member countries; and the promotion of international co-operative relations. FAC convened various committees and forums to identify the common interests and concerns of its members and I was particularly involved with the feeds sector. Alongside UKASTA, FAC made direct representation to UK government and through the offices of the Comité Général de la Coopération Agricole de la C.E.E. (COGECA) to Brussels.

In 1990 I transferred from FAC to one of the individual co-operatives. As Product Manager for a range of compound animal feeds to which I had no input either in respect of their composition or manufacture I did not find it a very comfortable situation and the relationship lasted barely two years.

I moved on to become Technical Manager for a feed supplement manufacturer where I had a range of responsibilities but for 10 years there followed a series of mergers and take-overs the details of which I will skip as they make tedious reading.

In 2002 I embarked on some part time consultancy, primarily in the area of feeds assurance and part time lecturing in animal nutrition to diploma and degree students studying animal management at Askham Bryan College near York.

Fulfilling retirement

I now enjoy being free to pursue my interests outside those of a professional career. I have returned to South Africa, although not to Swaziland. In 2010, Sue and I spent three weeks visiting the Kruger and Western Cape. Last year I fulfilled a long held ambition to see and photograph the fantastic flora of Western China at first hand. My on-going interests revolve around family – we now have three grandchildren who give us great joy, our local village wine society which is in its 26th year, fly fishing for brown trout on the River Wharfe, some volunteer work for the Yorkshire Wildlife Trust and involvement in the Yorkshire Agricultural Adventurers.

Tony Packman (1962–66)

It's hard to imagine that it's nearing 50 years since I left Wye – and yet since then much has happened including the College virtually ceasing to exist, depriving would-be agricultural students of a truly amazing and hugely enjoyable experience.

A career in the city

The end of my time at Wye coincided with a rapidly rising value in the price of land, such that any thoughts of acquiring my own farm vanished and I turned to the City, becoming after an initial year, an insurance broker with one of the large Lloyd's broking houses. In this pre-digital age, virtually all insurance broking was done on a personal basis with discussion face to face with the underwriters – in my case, those that underwrote non-marine business.

This could be an intimidating experience for there cannot be too many industries where a person in a junior position (here a young broker) finds himself, when dealing with large risks, dealing directly with the equivalent of a company chairman (here a senior Lloyd's Underwriter) in trying to persuade him of the merits of the risk in question. In the 1960s, these senior underwriters were all somewhat awesome and elderly figures who could become unforgiving if they felt that you had not fully prepared and understood the particulars and nature of the risk you were trying to place. But there was excitement on the completion of a large and difficult risk, and being able to confirm to the producer that the placement was now 100% completed.

International losses

There were excitements too, particularly when a large loss occurred. An early loss I rather too vividly remember arose on the placement of a new high-speed train that had to be tested prior to acceptance by the American railroad company that had placed the order for it. On the day of the test, it reached its top designed speed with some ease, only for a large claim to arise as it passed a normal express train travelling in the opposite direction, for the "experts" had not realized the substantial suction force generated, which resulted in the express having its windows sucked out. Fortunately, no passengers were sucked out but there were many injuries due to the flying glass, and much luggage was damaged. Trying to recover a loss for riot damage in Hong Kong from a reinsurance company in Peking, produced a three page diatribe, refusing to acknowledge that this had been a riot but insisting that this was "merely a reasonable and spontaneous expression of protest by a downtrodden people under the foot of an utterly ugly imperialist clown" – (the British Government). Fortunately, eventually, the reinsurers met their obligation.

Move to underwriting

After some 30 years I was invited to change roles and become an underwriter at Lloyd's. This really did concentrate the mind in trying to evaluate the merits or otherwise of a piece of business that the broker had spent considerable time preparing, so as to give the most favourable features of the risk, and trying to convince you that a commitment by you and the Syndicate to a line of some $5,000,000 would be beneficial to both parties.

It was only upon retirement some eight years ago that I fully appreciated how enormously I had enjoyed the work and particularly the environment. Perhaps I had been fortunate in the era I had worked, for post my retirement much of the business is now dealt with by the internet, alas, so very impersonal, as so many of my ex-colleagues point out.

Off the beaten tack

Aside from work, the enormous enjoyment through having been chosen by Jerry Groome to go on the Scarcies River Wye College expedition to Sierra Leone in 1964, led to a love for travel to somewhat off beat destinations, particularly trekking opportunities – among the more memorable being Borneo, Nepal, Sikkim, Peru, Patagonia, Mali, Namibia and Madagascar.

My earlier interest in butterfly collecting, where in Sierra Leone I was aided by the other members of the team in building quite a comprehensive collection, has moved to photographing specimens rather than collecting, which has now become very much frowned upon. Other interests include sailing when I owned and raced a catamaran for a number of years before discovering the joys of chartering yachts in warmer waters such as Greece, Turkey and the Caribbean. Another hobby being photography where long hours spent in a darkroom have been replaced by mere minutes with a laptop.

Gardening seems to provide quite good exercise, as does Scottish dancing where I have been fortunate in marrying a Scottish wife, thereby giving me a reasonable excuse to wear a kilt at the various formal balls we attend.

So retirement is proving very enjoyable, with never a dull moment.

Chris Warn (1963–66)

The Scarcies River Expedition must have wetted my liking of Africa as I have spent 25 years of my working life in African countries.

But to start – in our final year at Wye a group of Kenyan students led by Jeremy Selby decided to organise to drive from the UK to Nairobi after graduation. Both I and Douglas Clark also of SRE together with David Gore and Mike Blandy joined this group, all with little thought of what we would actually do when we got to Kenya – other than have a good time! As it turned out all the Kenya students failed to graduate and faced a resit, but the remaining four of us decided to go anyway.

Wye Trans Africa

So Wye Trans Africa was born. We left the UK in early October 1966 travelling through France and Spain to cross at Gibraltar to Morocco and then along the North African coast through Algeria, Tunisia, Libya to Egypt. Then we followed the Nile down to Aswan into the Sudan, Ethiopia and finally reached Nairobi in Kenya in early January 1967.

Work with the ODA

Mike Blandy and I had arranged jobs with ODA (DFID) in Tanzania where we worked in the Agricultural Research Services for two years. After this we decided to drive back to the UK; this time with Roger Packham (Wye 1963–1966), who was in Uganda with his wife Donna, via India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iran, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia and Europe.

I spent about four months in UK trying to decide what to do next before accepting another ODA post, this time in Zambia where I was OIC of the Regional Agricultural Research Station for the Central Province at Kabwe from 1970-1972. Here I met and later married Shirley, gaining a step-daughter Ingrid. I then joined the Commonwealth Development Corporation (CDC) and firstly worked in Swaziland 1972-1984 then Malaysia/Sarawak 1985, Jamaica 1986-1989, PNG 1989-1993, Tanzania 1993-1996, Uganda 1996-1998. All these jobs were in the Agribusiness Department managing a range of companies growing/processing sugarcane, citrus, oil palm, cocoa, bananas, wattle, tea and macadamias.

Retirement to Australia

After 30 years overseas I decide to take early retirement from CDC at the tender age of 55 to retire to Australia to join my step-daughter Ingrid and her daughter Tina. Here we purchased a 22 acre property in the Northern Rivers area of NSW near Ballina where we have a small organic macadamia grower business and have also planted some 5,500 native rain forest trees, half of which have hard wood timber potential.

I am now an Australian citizen and support the Aussies Rugby and Cricket!!

Striking out in Australia

Roger Packham (1963–1966), now a regular visitor to our shores, recounts how he took a radical approach to agricultural education in Australia before moving into consulting on wider land use issues in Asia.

After finishing at Wye I went to Uganda on a 'Study and Serve' scholarship to teach and do my research Masters degree. Through a birthday party put on for me by Mike Henson (1964–66), I met my now wife Donna, and we married there in 1967. We travelled home by Kombi van with Mike Blandy (1963–66) and Chris Warn (1963–66) via India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iran, Turkey and Europe; it was a wonderful trip and we saw the now destroyed Buddhas in Bamiyan Valley.

To Australia for £10

I could not find a good job in UK in 1969, so emigrated on the ten pound passage to Australia, as Donna is from Sydney. There I did my PhD at Sydney University in Poultry Nutrition, and became a research scientist with the State Department of Primary Industries in Queensland. The following year (1974) our newly purchased house went under water in the Great Brisbane flood, so when repaired I took what I thought would be a temporary job at Hawkesbury Agricultural College back in Sydney as Head of Animal Production. The College then became a part of the University of Western Sydney, now one of the largest Universities in Australia, and I am still there as an adjunct Associate Professor, even though I 'retired' in 2003.

During my time there our agricultural staff group took a radical approach to the curriculum, basing it on student-centred learning, holistic thinking and experiential learning. We were very successful, but like Wye, interest in agricultural education has declined in Australia. From being the largest agricultural group in Australia in the late 1990s, we are now debating if we can keep agriculture at the university, the decline coming as the 'originals' all retired.

Development projects

I have done a lot of consulting while at the University, and have my own company together with Richard Bawden (1961 graduate of Wye) and a couple of others. We have a research project I am involved with in Rajasthan and Gujarat, looking at village-level participative managed aquifer recharge of the declining water table. We have just completed an evaluation of a ten-year project for UN-Habitat on Human Values-Based Water Sanitation and Hygiene Education, and will be running a series of three modules on leadership and learning for an organisation in Papua New Guinea over the next six months, which will take me there for about three weeks in total.

Most of the time, though, is now spent on pleasure, with travel, reading, gardening, and as a volunteer with a multi-faith service-based community spiritual organisation of which I am the deputy national coordinator for Australia.

In recent times we have caught up with Harry Franks (1963–66) in Sydney, and had George (1963–67) and Karen Noble (née Kruse 1963–66) stay with us on their way to Queensland. We regularly visit our son in London and stay in close contact with Dick (1963–66) and Mo Brown (née Low 1964–67) to keep up with agricultural happenings in UK and news of our year group. Often when we visit, Mike Hurst (1963–66) comes over as well from Ireland and stays at the Browns. We aim to time our visits to be able to attend the now regular reunions of our year (1963–66) that started in 2003 at Wye. The picture above is from the 2010 gathering in Huntington.

Chrysanthus in Gran Canaria and other far-flung places

John Killick (1963–1966) recounts a Life after Wye that led him to retire in the Canary Islands.

In August 1966 I flew (my first ever flight) to Las Palmas, Gran Canaria, to take up a job with Framptons Nurseries (Overseas) Ltd who had set up a production farm in GC to supply plant material for their customers. Vera followed with Nicola on a small banana boat some six weeks later. Life then was very different with very primitive communications both within the islands and overseas. The economy was primarily based on agriculture and fishing; mass tourism was at its very early stages. I spent three years in GC before returning to England to manage one of Framptons nurseries first in Worthing and then in Barnham, Sussex. 1974 took us back to Gran Canaria where I was MD for the expanding Framptons operations over there.

Running my own business

After various soundings for job opportunities in Central America and the States, I decided in 1978 to set up independently in Gran Canaria. The business developed and expanded through the eighties with exports of cuttings and cut flowers throughout Europe. The end of the eighties brought adverse trading conditions for us in the Canary Islands and the next ten years was a period of consolidation and specialization in chrysanthemum cutting supply and chrysanthemum variety breeding. In 2003 the business was sold to a Dutch group and I finally retired in 2004.

Having expected to quietly fade into obscurity I was approached by a major German ornamental plant breeding company to set up a plant breeding project in India. For the past six years this project has taken me on frequent visits to India and Africa, in a fascinating job applying a lifetime of experience without all the business worries and responsibilities of managing staff, finance etc. The early years in the Canary Islands provided valuable experience in coping with rural India. This year will probably be my last in India but the project continues in Kenya and Colombia. I will miss it when I am finally not required.

Vera worked for many years as a teacher at the British School of Gran Canaria. She retired some years ago but still helps as a volunteer listening to the children read. She now follows the progress of the children of her early pupils at the school!

Three global daughters

Our three daughters are scattered over the globe. Nicola lives in UK and has one daughter. Our second, Julia (Wye 1986–89), lives in Tenerife and has six children (four of her own and two adopted from her second marriage). Sally, the youngest, lives near Cape Town, is married to a South African and has three boys. Increasingly the grandchildren are spreading their wings with University studies in Germany, France, and Spain; we vainly try to keep up with them all.

Retired contentment in the sun

Our day-to-day life very much revolves round the local community. We are not interested in an expat life style and maintain strong links with the local social and cultural scene. We have a large garden to keep up and still have a farm which currently is rented out to a strawberry grower, while olive oil production is a new and expanding pastime. We have had the pleasure of meeting up with Robin (1963–66) and Josephine Lowe, and John (1963–66) and Val Harbour on their visits here, and are always pleased to welcome new and old faces.

Moving to pastures new

- kicking the cereal habit

John Meadley (1965–1968) describes the establishment of the Pasture-Fed Livestock Association.

Pasture is one of Britain's primary natural resources, covering two thirds of UK farmland, and yet it remains one of its most poorly developed. The contrast in approach to grassland management between dairy and beef enterprises gives just a hint of the enormous potential that exists for increasing its productivity. With such potential on our doorstep, it seems barmy to support farming systems that cut down rainforest to produce soya bean and plunder overfished seas to produce feedstuffs for ruminant cattle whose digestive and metabolic systems are poorly equipped to utilise efficiently. Business as usual, but with yet more technology, seems to be current theme rather than taking a fresh look at our natural resources.

Shared the same interest

So when, in late 2009, I chanced to meet a couple of farmers who were raising their beef animals solely on pasture we decided to try and bring together other farmers who shared the same interest and experience and to bring greater recognition to the true value of pasture and the livestock systems that it supports.

The Pasture-Fed initiative was also borne of a wish to actively shape the future of farming rather than sit back and accept the apocalyptic, self-fulfilling prophecy of what lies ahead if farming doesn't adopt a high-tech, intensive approach to production, spawned by an uncomfortable marriage of corporate science and politics. When one third of the world's farmed produce is wasted, and two thirds of the world's harvested grain is fed to livestock, is pushing up yields and increasing the stress on livestock, soils and farmers really the only answer to feeding mankind? Clearly not, and one part of the answer is to increase the role of grass-fed livestock production, seen as an essential part of the solution to the challenges set out in IAASTD's 'Crossroads' report*.

The first step was to form an online discussion group, followed by some meetings – where a surprisingly large number of farmers turned up. It soon became apparent that the existing use of the term 'grass-fed' covered too wide a range of practice and that we needed to begin with a clean sheet of paper. 'Pasture-Fed', which more accurately reflects the value of herbs and legumes alongside grass species within the grazed diet, was chosen.

Developing a brand

The group also recognised that, for this to become widely adopted, the value of Pasture-Fed had to be taken through to the point of sale and therefore a brand was needed. The name Pastoral with the strap-line 'Pasture-Fed for Life', was chosen to reflect the values we wished to represent. Once created, the brand would need a corporate body both to own the brand and to ensure that the integrity and overall objectives remained true. It was at this point that the discussion group finally evolved into the Pasture-Fed Association, which was established as a Community Interest Company.

From the outset, we wanted Pasture-Fed to be firmly rooted in good farming practice and to take greater responsibility for the relationship with the customers who would be so vital to its success. We began by establishing a set of production standards to define what we meant by Pasture-Fed and thus ensure that it didn't become just another cheap branding exercise with little substance. This was vital if Pasture-Fed was to earn the sort of confidence and trust that is sadly lacking in so much of today's food market.

Evolving production standards

The production standards evolved by working with our pioneer farmers, using their practical knowledge of what can be achieved from Pasture-Fed systems. Pasture and forage are the primary nutrition sources, with animals grazing pasture during the growing season and provision made for over-wintering by using conserved forage such as hay or haylage. Permitted forage includes grass, straw, and forage break crops but grain, concentrate feed and grain by-products are not permitted.

To ensure the integrity of the Pastoral brand, producers are audited, usually in conjunction with their existing Farm Assurance or Organic inspections, Supporting the Pastoral brand is the Pasture-Tracks traceability system. Every animal raised by an Approved Supplier is allocated a unique Pastoral number on a web-managed database. This remains with the produce through to the point of sale and a QR barcode is generated, allowing the consumer, either by using a smart phone or by typing the number into the Pasture-Fed website, to immediately see information about the animal and learn about the farm where it was raised.

Full membership of the Pasture-Fed Association costs £50 per year and is open to anyone who is interested in making the most from pasture and reducing reliance upon costly grain and concentrate feed. There are no restrictions on size of holding or livestock numbers and our members range from those with half a dozen cows to farms covering over 2000 hectares.

Pasture-Fed markets – the next part of the journey

We currently have over 120 members and 30 approved suppliers, who are selling through a variety of outlets including farm shops, farmers markets and online meat box schemes. Many producers continue to sell produce through conventional routes that do not yet recognise the Pasture-Fed provenance. This is a necessary part of building a latent supply base in anticipation of developing markets. Nevertheless, these producers are already finding that a reduced reliance on purchased feed represents a far more financially resilient system of raising livestock.

Where next?

It has taken four years, with very limited resources, to build the system that now underwrites the brand – and it has been done almost entirely by farmers themselves. During this time we have been wary of creating a market that could not be supplied and we have turned down several offers of high-profile launches. At the same time, we have learnt that farmers will not sign up if there is no obvious market! The inertia of contemporary farming trends can also present a barrier. Farmers will often comment "you can't finish animals without concentrate feed" without pausing to consider either the success of those who are doing just that (we have some very impressive year-round grading reports demonstrating what is possible) or the fact that ruminants evolved to eat pasture, or that this was how cattle were raised until recently.

Inspiration from newer entrants

With some of the more established farm businesses finding it difficult to kick the cereal habit, it is not surprising to find a healthy proportion of newer entrants amongst our members. Often they bring with them skills and experience from outside farming that provide inspiration for what can be achieved rather than being bound by the constraints of what currently exists. Nevertheless, for Pasture-Fed to achieve its full potential, producers must leave behind some aspects of our more recently inherited farming culture, relearn some lessons from earlier times and invest themselves in a collective approach that provides mutual benefits for all involved.

We have received practical support from a number of sources, notably the National Trust, with its 160,000 ha of grassland, the Esmee Fairbairn Foundation, Compassion in World Farming, the Sheepdrove Trust and the American Grassfed Association.

Challenges ahead

The challenges ahead are considerable and it will be some time before we can make a significant change in daily diets, in the way we farm and the way that food chains function. However, we have already seen significant market interest amongst consumers (be they individuals, retailers or restaurants) in being able to purchase meat certified as pasture-fed. It was a particular thrill, in mid February, to be present at the launch of the first retail food outlet certified by the PFLA – the Chalk Valley restaurant in Southampton. We are confident that we now have in place the necessary resources to respond to the growing demand whilst ensuring the integrity of Pasture-Fed and the values it represents.

The world of food and farming never stands still, and even the retail sector that has been so dominated by supermarkets is likely to be transformed by the growth in online sales. Whilst policy makers look for increasingly complex solutions to solving climate change and biodiversity loss whilst balancing economic growth, Pasture-Fed represents a surprisingly simple but effective part of the solution – to use one of farming's most under-utilised resources to produce high quality produce and to bring complete transparency in its journey from field to fork.

This is a farmer-run organisation. Although I am company secretary and currently Chair of the Board, my true function is evident from my email address – sheepdog@pfla.org.uk!

A PhD made in clover

David Bennett (1953–56) has been a regular contributor to the Wye Journal over the years, often describing tales of derring-do in the company of the late Tim Calcutt. Here he records a journey of an altogether more serious type involving valuable research carried out 'down under'.

Establishing broad-scale agriculture in Western Australia was relatively easy. Clearing the vegetation, which ranged from low scrub to savannahs, required very little effort, but the generally deep sands contained almost no nutrients. Phosphate fertilisers produced amazing results, such that if a patch was missed then nothing grew there. This was the perfect place for clovers, of which subterranean clover, a native of the Mediterranean Basin, was perfect. The result was a lovely sward consisting almost solely of clover.

Clover disease

But in the early 1940s, ewes grazing these clover-dominant pastures produced many fewer lambs than were expected. They also suffered from a number of other reproductive disorders, such as prolapsed uteri, and became permanently infertile. The condition was called clover disease because of the obvious association. On investigation, the cause of these problems was thought to be phytoestrogens in the clovers, of which there were a number. A sub-group, known as the isoflavones, were considered to be the most likely culprit, as they were found in quantity in many of the clover varieties used in Western Australia.

From field observations farmers and scientists suspected that there were differences in ewe infertility between varieties of subterranean clover. But experiments to establish this were impossible due to the scale of the necessary work. So bioassay, the measurement of responses by living tissue or organisms, was used, beginning with laboratory animals, guinea pigs and mice. However, the results did not seem to correlate with the field observations of farmers and scientists.

In May 1961, I was appointed as an experimental officer in the CSIRO Division of Plant Industry, Canberra, after working as a technical officer on various King Ranch properties, both in the Northern Territory and NSW. Shortly after my appointment, my boss, Dr Fred Morley, suggested that I might like to spend the next six months working for Dr Haydn Lloyd Davies in Western Australia. Haydn was a recent arrival from the University of North Wales, via the Grassland Research Institute at Hurley. Happy to oblige, I arrived in Perth and was introduced to the staff and the Glen Lossie Field Station at Kojonup, where I helped with a number of experiments.

Bioassay in sheep

Shortly after my arrival, we were visited by Dr Don Lamond of the Division of Animal Production, who described an experiment that he had performed using the uterine weights of spayed maiden ewes as a form of oestrogenic bioassay. Haydn immediately decided to use the technique to measure oestrogenic effects of different varieties of subterranean clover. So we set up an operating theatre in the shearing shed at Glen Lossie and proceeded to spay a group of maiden ewes, and then feed them on two different varieties of clover, one of which was suspected of being high in oestrogens and the other low. We sold the experimental sheep to the Kojonup butcher and attended the slaughter in order to collect the uteri. That night, having cleaned up the uteri and weighed them, it was quite clear that our suspicions had been confirmed. I can remember Haydn getting very excited, saying "Boy, you don't realise what we have found tonight!"

We performed further, larger trials, which involved taking a truck load of experimental sheep down to the Albany abattoir, because there were too many for the local butcher. Then I returned to Canberra.

Different results in the lab

Fred Morley, who was a veterinarian by training, thought that more research was required to sort out some problems that had arisen. The first one was that the results of bioassays using laboratory animals had given different results to the sheep bioassays. After further experiments in association with officers of the Division of Animal Production, involving measurements of the different isoflavones, we found that the two water-soluble isoflavones (genistein and biochanin A) that were active in guinea pigs and mice (extracted from the clovers and injected into the muscle of these animals) were virtually inactive in sheep. But a virtually insoluble (in water or body fluid) isoflavone that was inactive in laboratory animals (partly or mainly due to its insolubility it stayed at the site of the injection) called formononetin, was well correlated with the activity found in clovers. It turned out that formononetin was broken down in the rumen to another oestrogenic compound, called equol, which was then absorbed and caused clover disease.

Eureka moment

One final problem remained and that was some aberrant bioassay results with clovers containing genistein and biochanin A. We had adopted another, less destructive form of bioassay using the increase of teat length in wethers (castrated male sheep). Because responses in teat length were faster, we could reduce the length of bioassay and did not have to slaughter the sheep. When we did so, clovers containing these two isoflavones showed activity. Late one night in 1968, while I was working on my PhD thesis (an external PhD from London University with Prof Willy Holmes and Fred Morley as supervisors) I plotted the length of feeding time against activity from these two isoflavones. The graph showed that, as feeding time increased, activity of clovers containing these two rapidly declined. We inferred that, as the rumen microflora got used to the clover diet, they broke down genistein and biochanin A. This was a Eureka moment for me and I realised that my PhD was in the bag! All I had to do was complete the thesis and submit it.

From then on varieties of subterranean clover low in formononetin were selected and these were recommended for sowing. Also, as the nitrogen content of the soil from fixation by the clovers built up, so grasses and other forbs increased, clover dominance declined, which also helped to resolve the problem for farmers. There is little talk of clover disease these days.

The Wye Beagles

Jane McLennan, Honorary Secretary, provides a brief history of the pack, formerly Wye College Beagles (WCB), from its beginnings in 1947 right through to the final days in 2014.

So how did it all start?

The WCB were formed in 1947 by John Stevens using drafts from the RAC, Linton, Dorset and Dummer Beagles and for their first season amalgamated with Sir Newton Rycroft's Dummer Beagles to form the Wye College and Dummer Beagles. They were hunted by John Stevens MH for the 1947–49 seasons; the first whip was Richard Heaton (who has provided information for this article). In 1948 the beagles were established as the Wye College Beagles. The principal, Dunstan Skilbeck, was hunt chairman from 1947–67 and much of the progress in those years, including the rebuilding of the kennels, was due to his organisation. Over the years the hunted country has changed due to expanding urbanisation, new roads and railways – HS1 being a major obstacle.

1947–53 The first Kennel huntsman, Ralph Watson, lived in an old double deck bus by kennels. Horses and hounds were his life. He had also spent some years in circuses.

1953–59 Charlie Back was kennel huntsman.

1954 Joint mastership over two seasons was inaugurated. Also a committee set up with chairman, two joint masters and members from both inside and outside the College.

1959–60/1963–64 Claude Cotterill was kennel huntsman.

Wye Beagles Horse Show started in 1950, with the last one held in the early '80's. A Dog Show, terrier races and side shows ran alongside it.

The annual Hunt Ball was the first Friday in November, but in later years was held towards the end of January or early February.

1960 saw the start of a proper breeding programme and a breeding committee.

1965–66/1872–79 William Catt was kennel huntsman.

1967–69 Sir D'Arcy Waechter was kennel huntsman.

1969 WCB Captain was Peterborough Champion.

1970–71 Harry Gillard was kennel huntsman.

1971–72 Paul Harris was kennel huntsman.

1972 WCB have excellent results with South of England Supreme Championship.

1973 WCB Painter (Sandhurst Waiter x WCB Promise), walked by Dorothy Fairburn, was South of England Champion, Rydal Champion and then 1974 Peterborough Champion. Mike Alcock advises "we all got drunk after the Peterborough win – on champagne from the cup!".

1980–95 Owen Newing was kennel huntsman, living at Beagle Bungalow.

1987 The 40th anniversary meet at the Old Rectory, Bodsham, was well supported.

1988 In November WCB, at the invitation of Simon Block, lay Sherriff, City of London, led the Lord Mayor's Parade through the City of London, with hounds staying the previous night at Knightsbridge Barracks.

1994 WCB won the college class and Silver Salver at South of England Hound Show, Ardingly.

1995–2014 Glenn Dodwell has been kennel huntsman.

1997 The 50th anniversary. To celebrate, the chairman's wife, Jessica Middleton, organised a major refurbishment of the kennel site using teams of voluntary labour to complete it in eight days in the mud and rain, in time for the Puppy Show.

1998: Being a student-run pack it was the students who were responsible for maintaining kennels and looking after hounds. The disadvantages of a 6.30 am start (often compounded by the after-effects of a night in the Union) were made up for by taking the hounds for morning exercise down the lanes around the college farm. Beagles also provided a post-hunt social life from legendary Wednesday nights in the Union to the hunt suppers and superb hunt balls. WCB offered a fantastic way of socially integrating oneself into the life of the college.

Hunting and working with the WCB has proven a great stepping stone to professional hunt service. Dan Murphy (2001) started his second job in hunt service as 1st whip to the Burton Hunt in Lincolnshire. A number of other former MHs are also amateur/professional hunt servants in various parts of the country.

"Taking over the mastership of the beagles was the start of a long, sometimes stressful, but definitely satisfying year of managing hounds and kennels, carding meets, hunting, and helping organise the numerous events held by the hunt annually. The privilege of being Master of Hounds and the joy of hunting a pack of beagles is unforgettable." Alex Dinsdale (MH 1999/2000).

2000 the college became Imperial at Wye and the pack became officially known as "WCB The Wye Beagles".

Tributes to the Wye beagles

There have been lots of tributes to the passing of this much-loved tradition received by the WB Secretary: here are just a couple that passed over my desk - Ed

"I was introduced to Wye college during the late 1960s when I was a teenager in Essex by one of the whippers in for North Essex foot beagles; John Harris who had thoroughly enjoyed his time at Wye studying agric' and being actively involved with the Wye beagles. John was a smallholder in Mid Essex and best friends with my father who was also a whipper in for NEF. I was always pleased that before he died in 1972 John knew that I had followed in his footsteps to Wye through our common love of beagling".

Rosemary Milton (néé Scott-Miller) 1972–75

And from Michael M Bonnington MBE (1969-72) in Vientiane Province, Laos:

"Seeing the notice: WYE BEAGLES – FORMERLY WYE COLLEGE BEAGLES rang a bell for me. I swept away some of the mists and out popped the precise nature of the bell: in the period 1969 to 1972, I was the Treasurer. It is strange that people think that being an economist means that you understand accounts – which came rather later for me – I think! But there was a great man in the College Accounts Department, whose name escapes me right now, and who was always ready to help out (I was also Treasurer of the Senior Common Room and a village committee that was established to run fêtes – all I can say is that they saw me coming).

For me, this was an extraordinary post to occupy: especially as I was at that time very much under the influence of Gerald Wibberley and he was very much under the influence of Peggy Samways who was very very much anti-blood sports ('very much' was very much a GPW form of words). I was persuaded by their arguments, but nonetheless I continued with my role on the Committee. How did I do that? Well, I rationalized it like this:

- Wye was unlike any other institution of London University (unarguable).
- There were relatively few student pursuits available as might be offered by an urban environment (unarguable).
- The Beagles offered a rural pursuit that was greatly popular amongst the students from year to year, and offered a variety of opportunities to participate (unarguable).
- Thus the balance was in favour of the Beagles (total balderdash).

One might as well have said that slavery was a great boost to the American cotton industry as well as adding profits to the merchants who dealt in them ...

David Catt was Kennel Huntsman and was a rural character and a real character around whom whole accounts of a different sort could be offered. My abiding memories of him were that he always wore a cap of somewhat used appearance, he made scrumpy cider, which he knew was ready for consumption when a whole leg of lamb was totally consumed by the concoction in its container, said scrumpy was then offered at occasional Beagles parties where the participants were invariably knocked out by intoxication, and those parties took place in the cottage where he lived, provided for the purpose (of his living) by Wye College Beagles (more probably by Wye College unaided).

Mike Alcock was on the Committee, too. He was there long before my arrival and continued long after my departure and will, no doubt, be the major source for recollections.

2001 The pack hit the headlines. One night in early January the kennels were broken into and virtually the entire pack stolen. The theft was widely reported locally, nationally and even internationally. The Animal Liberation Front claimed responsibility and issued a set of photographs of their activists posing with the hounds. The theft was a devastating blow to the pack, the student masters – Kate Bull and Dan Murphy – and all involved with the beagles.

The hunt met on the Saturday following the theft – in the full glare of the media spotlight and with a much-enlarged field – for a great day's hunting on Romney Marsh with borrowed hounds, and the four remaining WCB hounds who had somehow managed to evade capture.

Despite the flurry of media interest in the days and weeks following the theft of the pack, only one hound was ever found – Sextant – in Bristol. He had been castrated and a crude attempt made to remove his ear tattoos. Police charged a man with handling stolen goods but nothing has been heard since about the rest of the pack.

However, the pack kept hunting thanks to the generosity of beagle packs around the country offering draft hounds. Martin Hutchinson (MH WCB 1957–59) assisted greatly with the final selection of drafts and WCB kennelman, Glenn Dodwell, spent many weeks collecting them – WCB was up and running again. Sadly the WCB bloodlines and 53 years of breeding effort and care had been lost.

2001 was the year the UK suffered its first foot and mouth disease outbreak since the 1960s. MAFF announced in the February that hunting was temporarily prohibited. Although the Wye Beagles hunting season ended earlier than planned, the pack's activities continued with hunting replaced by scenic road walks around Wye and the surrounding villages.

A number of ex-students continued valiant efforts to keep the pack running, with the support of other members of the Committee, including the Chairman Jane McLennan (who has, in recent years, added the role of Treasurer and Honorary Secretary to her chairman's duties), and the kennelman Glenn Dodwell. History continued with Mark Skilbeck (son of Dunstan Skilbeck) as Vice Chairman.

2005 Following legal advice, the beagles became WCB The Wye Beagles Ltd, with the management committee and directors overseeing the running of the hunt.

Every hunt had to deal with the 2004 Hunting Act, which came into force in February 2005. The WCB stated their intention to work within the law and use some of the exemptions including trail hunting and rabbiting, while also contending with hunt saboteurs who now style themselves as 'hunt monitors'.

2007 saw the untimely death of the previous Chairman, Frank Middleton, whose excellent diplomatic skills were well tested by student misdemeanours! Then Martin Hutchinson's sudden death the same year was a further blow to the WCB – his enthusiasm, knowledge of beagle blood lines, and encouragement to keep the WCB going, being sorely missed.

The pack celebrated its 60th year by hosting a beagling festival in the February. Ex-WCB student masters who were involved with other packs were invited to bring their hounds to Kent for a weekend of activities. Matthew Higgs (1979), Henry Walker (1998) and James Woodward (2004–05; 2007–14) all hunted over the weekend followed by evening events in the college.

2008 saw the beagles change from a college pack to being a successful and vibrant pack in a more traditional hunt format. The pack, however, maintained its strong emphasis on encouraging people from non-hunting backgrounds and youngsters to get involved with hounds. The 2008 season saw Peter Russell and three local teenagers, Bradley Cordrey, Ellen Wilson and Kayne Hall whipping-in and working towards earning a hunt uniform. The Joint Masters, James Woodward and Melinda Nicholson, and whips William Hough and James Barber, all ex-students of Wye, remained locally to maintain their involvement with hounds; the other uniformed whip, Mark Peacock being a true local. The non-uniformed whip Edward Holman was a uniformed whip in the 70's. The 2008 season ended with a hunt tour to Devon, Cornwall and Somerset where pack and supporters attended six meets in four days, with four different packs of beagles and the Wye hunting three times - quite unusual for the pack as it was only hunting once a week.

Annually, when hunting finished, the show season started with WCB parading hounds at the East Kent Hunt point-to-point on Easter Monday and by the autumn the pack attended Kent Game Fair, Kent Schools Living Land Fair, Kent County Show, South of England Hound Show Ardingly, Hamstreet Country Fair, EKH and AVH Country Fairs, Edenbridge Show, Heathfield Show, Rydal and Peterborough Hound Shows and several others. Shows are enjoyed by hunt staff and are a great PR tool to help promote hunting and beagling, but many people are still unsure what beagles are: hunt staff have been known to take bets on the number of times they are asked if the beagles are puppies! This is especially true when the foxhounds are alongside WCB.

Fundraising has included the annual Wye Beagles (Public) Dog Show, latterly held at Olantigh Park, Wye, which has raised funds for the beagles and the Kent Air Ambulance Trust.

2011 Mastership became three – James Woodward (huntsman), Peter Russell and Stuart Cole

2013 WCB get ribbons at Ardingly and Peterborough. But then in November the sad and final decision is taken to close the pack at the end of the 2013–14 Season. A local A-level student, whose work experience with the beagles generated a new interest and facilitated entry to university, became the last uniformed student member of WCB hunt staff.

22 March 2014 The last meet of the final season of The Wye Beagles was held locally in Wye and was followed by a traditional beaglers hunt tea. It was attended by many who had enjoyed great times through the years with WCB and was a fitting celebration of a great little pack. Hounds have been drafted to other packs to continue their purpose in life.

Book Reviews

Just Vegetating

A Memoir by Joy Larkcom

Reviewd by Lucy Huntingdon

This book is, as all Joy's books are, a veritable mine of information about growing vegetables and salad crops. But, it is also a great and enjoyable read whether you choose to read it cover to cover, or to dip into it a bit at a time. Joy is one of the few Wye alumni to receive the Royal Horticultural Society's Veitch Memorial Medal for Horticulture, which is awarded annually to people who have made an outstanding contribution to the advancement of the science and practice of Horticulture. A richly deserved award as she, virtually single-handedly, conceived and promoted the idea of mixed salad bags which now are a staple of supermarket salad shelves, and brought to our attention dozens of interesting new vegetables which she found on her various forays around the world.

With her scientific background she has kept notes on all the plants she finds and collects seed where possible which she has contributed to seed banks ensuring the continuation of hundreds of varieties. She then tries out new seeds for herself and records results and then writes down her observations in articles for the horticultural press and in her books. For her writing she has three times gained the accolade of Garden Writer of the year and has a Lifetime Achievement Award of the Garden Writers Guild.

Just Vegetating is rather different from her previous books, which have been factual guides to growing salad crops and vegetables. This time she has written a narrative of her years since leaving Wye and punctuated her story with various articles she has written through the years. Some of the best bits are her comments on an article written perhaps 40 years ago and its relevance today.

She includes dozens of great articles which deserve being read and reread but the narrative is, for me, the most interesting as she relates the practicalities of her travels and of growing many of the vegetables she brought back with her. Above all, what really kept me reading was her account of her struggles, triumphs and failures all written in her usual open, honest and humble fashion.

In the Garden

British Library/RHS competition entry, 2004, (unpublished) – extract by Joy Larkcom from the last chapter of her book, Just Vegetating

Step out into the garden, grab a hoe, start sowing seeds, or weeding, or carting manure, or pruning... anything ...and a curious chemistry comes into play in a garden writer's mind. Words that indoors lurked just beyond reach, agonisingly elusive, now fly through the open windows of the outdoor mind, begging to be captured and written down, to be woven into sentences. Sometimes they land boldly in complete sentences or even paragraphs. They 'spring to mind', whirling and pushing, jostling like baby cuckoos, struggling to occupy the mind's space and oust all other thoughts. For there are other thoughts: observations, ideas, solutions, connections, above all memories, drifting in more gently, but with sparkling clarity, almost as soon as hand and soil or hand and tool make contact.

Is garden writing bondage? Is it impossible for a writer to relinquish that compulsion to tell, to describe, to teach, to entertain, and instead to simply enjoy the pure delights of gardening? Millions of words have been poured into describing these pure, simple joys. Is the garden writer alone unable to thrill at the first shoots appearing, to marvel at a rare combination of colour or form, or let the spirits soar in response to the warm sun, a gentle breeze, the light on a plant, a robin perched nearby... without the curse of rendering it into prose for someone else?

Yes, and no. For simply being in a garden liberates the writer's spirit. Within moments the magic starts to work, worries melt, tiredness drops away. And the memories steal in, triggered by trivialities but soaring away to distant friends, far away places, times long gone. Six decades, now, of precious memories. That not so innocent wireworm triggers the earliest of them all. It's wartime, I'm six years old or so, my Daddy's home on leave Digging for Victory, turning over the rough grass. He passes me the gleaming wireworms to feed the wartime hens. A bottle of Bulmer's cider propped nearby. Fast forward to peacetime a few years later and he's planting shrubs and teaching me their names. Ceratostigma willmotianum, Caryopteris clandonensis. What amazing names they seemed. How proud I was to learn them. So many names forgotten since. Why do these two remain? Only now can I imagine the joy it must have been, after the frenzy of war, to be discovering shrubs and planting them. How little we know our parents.

Another misplaced label. Scratching birds I suppose. But there we go... whirring back again but now I'm the parent. Our first garden. The first chance to experiment. Masses of seedlings are hardening off outside, each neatly labelled. And then I spot my baby crawling down the garden path, a clutch of labels in his teeth. His revenge for the tar oil wash that drifted onto his pram a few months before? My darling baby hauntingly covered with black splodges. I've never sprayed fruit since.

Pests, mice.... and my apprenticeship year in the nearly lost world of private gardens. And it's not the smell of roses but toasted cheese. Yes, with a lit match we toasted the cheese for the mousetraps, then set them carefully among the cyclamen (was it?) on the greenhouse staging. And I can see us out there for the afternoon break... adored head gardener Mr Gower, gaunt, slow working Mr. F, the cheeky Welshman, lovely Jess the maid who'd break for the garden whenever free... and Mrs F, bringing us a pot of tea. That undrinkable tea steeped on the hob all day. In turn we'd shield each other and silently pour our cups away. In a flash it's a tropical Indian evening, in the Cultural Attaché's garden. Gin and tonics. But the gin so weak, tepid and vile I quietly turn to pour it on the grass. And am face to face with another guest doing the same. The suppressed giggles are with me still.

A moment's sadness by the lemon balm. I'd always meant to tell John Peel its tale: my dear friend Mandy in his mother's Irish garden, collecting salad by torchlight and taking a cutting home ... Too late now - all those loved people gone.

Just look at that. The cat's above me pacing the windbreak fence. As she moves her shadow glides along the wall at right angles. Will shadow and substance meet at the corner? It's beautiful. It's eerie. How to describe it? Oh no, they've invaded again, the baby cuckoos, the writer writing. Can I never just be a gardener, in a garden, gardening?

I have ended with my entry to a joint British Library/RHS competition, 'The Writer in the Garden' which complemented the 2004 'The Year of the Garden' exhibition celebrating 200 years of gardening. My entry didn't get anywhere, but for me, it captured what garden writing is all about.

The basics of planting design

By Lucy Huntingdon

Reviewed by Gill Bond

Planting design is the selection and use of plants to achieve a designer's objectives. There are now many new and interesting planting ideas and fashions, but municipal planting in particular and some gardens, can be pretty dire through lack of careful planting design. What is needed for all garden designers – who may well come to design via a deep interest in plants – is an understanding of the basics of this vitally important design discipline.

Designs are three-dimensional to be walked in and around, and viewed from all sides. They will change over time; plants live and die, and need to be tended for maximum effect. There is a huge range of plants out there, added to all the time, a working knowledge of which takes experience. There are many pitfalls to be met in planting, which can be largely avoided by getting the basics of planting design right.

As we all know, the author, Lucy Huntingdon, has a Horticultural degree from Wye College, and is a garden designer with over 40 years' experience. This experience is distilled into this practical and clearly illustrated 100 page book, with chapters on the design process; the use of plants in design; planning planted areas; and the visual quality of plants. I think there will be many practicing designers and gardeners who will wish they had had a copy of this book on their shelves a while ago – as the author says, it has been 25 years in the writing!

Accountants' report for the year ended 31 July 2013

In accordance with the engagement letter dated 15 August 2006 we have compiled the financial statements of Wye College Agricola Club which comprise the income and expenditure account, the balance sheet and the related notes from the accounting records and information and explanations you have given to us.

The financial statements have been compiled on the accounting basis set out in note 1 to the financial statements. The financial statements are not intended to achieve full compliance with the provisions of UK Generally Accepted Accounting Principles.

This report is made to you, in accordance with the terms of our engagement. Our work has been undertaken so that we might compile the financial statements that we have been engaged to compile, report to you that we have done so, and state those matters that we have agreed to state to you in this report and for no other purpose. To the fullest extent permitted by law, we do not accept or assume responsibility to anyone other than the members of Wye College Agricola Club, for our work, or for this report.

We have carried out this engagement in accordance with technical guidance issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales and have complied with the ethical guidance laid down by the Institute.

You have approved the financial statements for the year ended 31 July 2013 and have acknowledged your responsibility for them, for the appropriateness of the accounting basis and for providing all information and explanations necessary for their compilation.

We have not verified the accuracy or completeness of the accounting records or information and explanations you have given to us and we do not, therefore, express any opinion on the financial statements.

Notes to the accounts

1 Accounting policies

The club prepares accounts on an accruals basis, using UK Generally Accepted Accounting Principles as guidance.

All income, except interest on investments, is derived from members or from sources outside the scope of Corporation Tax. As such the club is covered by Mutual Trading exemptions.

The club elects to write off the income from 'lifetime membership' applicants in the year of application.

Agricola Club Members' Lists

Please read the list of 'missing' members on page 189, we really would like to be in touch with them and our thanks to everyone who contacted us after the last Journal was published.

We are always grateful when you get in touch to let us know that your contact details have changed. When sending in a green form – if you have a printed letterhead with your email address on it please attach a copy, it is sometimes difficult to read hand writing, particularly email addresses.

Francis Huntington, as Honorary Secretary, mails out an e-newsletter to all members two or three times a year. Please let us have your email address so that you receive all the latest news, particularly in relation to the Annual Dinner.

We are receiving standing order payments from: Mrs J Cameron; RLO Jackson; PA Jackson; F ST G Unwin; G Wilson; and 'Veterinary Practice' – we are unable to ascribe these payments to any member – please contact us if you think it is your payment.

Finally, we would like to have first names where we only have initials; also there are still some members whose dates are missing. We would also like to identify those Agricola Club members who were college staff. Your help in filling in gaps will be gratefully received and if your details are not correct please let us know – we really would like to get them right.

Data Protection Act

Members' names, addresses and years at Wye College are kept on a database for ease of administration and use. Under the Data Protection Act we are required to have consent for this from all members. These details will be disclosed only to those officers of the Club whose function requires them, also to the printers of the Journal and distributors for the purpose of despatching the Journal and other communications to members. Any member who objects to their details being kept in this way should inform the secretary Francis Huntingdon immediately at contact@wyeagricolaclub.org.uk.

Lost Members – Can you help?

Agricola Club members with no known address

Plea from the database administrator– please email the Secretary with any addresses that you can supply. The people on this list (which is in graduation year order) will not be receiving a copy of the Journal, so they do not know they are on the 'lost list'. You may be surprised by some of the names for whom we do not have a current address.

Please contact Francis Huntingdon, email: contact@wyeagricolaclub.org.uk
